SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 6 (UPI)—A Chilean DC6B airliner with 87 persons aboard crashed today into the snow-covered slopes of a volcano high in the Andes as the pilot attempted to sweep through a cloud.

The plane, which was carrying 80 passengers and seven crewmen, including one American tourist, was the worst air disaster in Chilean history.

The plane's charred wreckage was strewn 1,000 yards over the volcano's slopes, haphazardly scattering the snow-covered mountain at the 11,700-foot level.

The four-motored propeller-driven plane left Santiago's La Merced airport at 7:30 a.m. (5:30 a.m. EST) for a hop through the Andes to Buenos Aires.

Authorities said the plane apparently crashed some 20 minutes later, taking 51 Chileans, including a soccer team, 29 foreigners and seven crewmen to their death.

The airlines identified the American as Helen A. Berger, Long Island, N.Y.

Forecast weather was nearly perfect and the early morning sun sparkled over the breath-taking Andes peaks which tower to nearly 22,000 feet. It is the highest mountain range in the Western Hemisphere.

But the pilot ran into clouds in the volcano, and crashed minutes after he received permission to change course.

An engineer at an electric power plant nearby said he saw the plane plume behind the San Jose volcano. He heard an explosion and called police.

The crew from a Chilean electric company and two ambulance crews from San Jose de Maipo reached the crash site, about 30 miles southeast of Santiago. The plane had traveled about 50 miles over the Andes when it crashed and burst into flames against the volcano.

The pilot of the all-Chilean crew, Mario Bustamante, radioed he encountered a patch of bad weather and asked permission to take another pass through the spectacular mountain range.

Permission was radioed to him. It was the last contact with the downed plane.

The Chilean airline, Lineas Aereas Nacionales (LAN), is the only airline which continues to fly over the Andes in propeller aircraft. All other airlines have switched to high altitude jets.

Vance Line Slates Initial T. E. Flight

SUN VALLEY, Feb. 6—Initial flight by Vance International Airways from Twin Falls to Los Angeles and San Francisco is scheduled for next week-end, Feb. 13 and 14, Mrs. Dorice Taylor, of the Sun Valley news bureau, announced today.

The civil aeronautics board Friday approved an application by the Vance International airline, Seattle, to provide non-stop air service between Twin Falls and the California cities during the skiing season at Sun Valley.

The new flight will provide the first direct air service to California from the Twin Falls area, Mrs. Taylor noted.

The plane, a DC7B, will fly between Joslin field, Twin Falls, and the Burbank airport in Los Angeles and the Oakland airport in San Francisco.

The initial flight will leave the Burbank airport at 7 a.m. Saturday and arrive in Twin Falls at 10:15 a.m.

The plane leaves Twin Falls at 11:15 a.m. Saturday, arriving at the Oakland airport at San Francisco at 12:15 p.m.

Sunday's schedule will leave the Oakland airport at 7 a.m. and arrive in Twin Falls at 10 a.m. The plane will leave Twin Falls at 11:15 a.m., arriving at the Burbank airport at 12:30 p.m.

All times listed for arrival and departure in California are Pacific standard time, Mrs. Taylor noted.

The plane has a 99-passenger capacity but the airline will observe an 80-85 passenger limit to offset the weight of ski equipment and baggage. The four-engine craft will serve the Twin Falls airport, since the Sun Valley-Halley airport is unable to accommodate planes of that size.

Western airlines opposed the application, stating its service to Sun Valley from Los Angeles is adequate for ski vacationers' needs.

The civil aeronautics board said Western airlines submitted no economic data supporting its contention. The board feels the added air service was needed and in granting Vance's application stipulated that not more than 20 one-way individual ticketed flights could be made during the 30-day period starting Saturday.

The applications for special flights during the skiing season was submitted by Vance Airlines at the request of the Janus corporation, which purchased Sun Valley last December.

It is another of the improvements being instituted at the resort, Mrs. Taylor added.

King Takes Racial Drive to Capital

SELMA, Ala., Feb. 6 (UPI)—A cold rain and the absence of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., today cooled the racial fires that have resulted in 3,300 arrests in this west Alabama area in the last three weeks.

King left early today to carry his racial complaints to Washington. He is due back in Alabama Monday night and promises to extend his Negro voter registration campaign to the capital city of Montgomery. King planned to spend the week-end with his family in Atlanta and then continue on to Washington for talks with justice department officials.

He initially said he would seek an audience with President Johnson, but the White House said today it had suggested the Nobel peace prize winner contact justice department officials instead.

White House Press Secretary George E. Reedy said it was decided to have King meet with Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach and other top justice department officials because they are considering possible legislation to deal with voting discrimination.

Reedy said the present arrangements did not completely rule out a meeting between King and the President.

The mass arrests in Selma and nearby Marion started when Negroes started marching to the Dallas county courthouse in large numbers, and ran afoul of Sheriff James Clark, who started charging the Negroes with unlawful assembly.

Hundreds of Negro students skipped school and joined the demonstrations in support of their parents, and the arrest totals started to soar.

The 3,300 taken into custody tops the all-time high of 3,000 arrests made during the Birmingham campaign of 1963.

About 2,400 of the current arrests have been made in Selma. Most of those taken into custody have been children and they have been turned loose almost as fast as they were arrested.

King was set free on bond from the Selma jail yesterday after spending five days behind bars to dramatize his campaign. He is charged with parading without a permit.

An aide said King may ask for a conference with Gov. George Wallace next week to discuss plans for a statewide Negro registration drive.

Solon Raps Bill To Create Junior College Districts

BOISE, Feb. 6 (UPI)—Rep. William J. Murphy, D., Shoshone, attacked legislation to create six junior college districts in Idaho today, saying it is a "crash program" full of inequities.

"I think the idea of a junior college system is excellent," Murphy said, "but I don't think it's necessary to crash into it like this. There hasn't been enough research done on these bills."

Murphy said the enabling legislation provides for an eight-mill levy to support the junior college districts but makes no provision for adjusting the disparity in assessments from county to county within them.

Real property is assessed statewide for tax purposes at an average of 15.9 per cent of its value. Yet, Murphy noted, the ratio of assessment to sale value ranges from a low of 12 per cent in Kootenai county to a high of 30 per cent in Boise.

Under this bill, Murphy said, counties with a junior college district would tax real property at the same number of mills but taxpayers in some counties would pay more than others because of differing assessment bases.

Murphy also questioned a provision in the proposed legislation which would require property owners in an existing junior college district to pay off outstanding bonds by themselves after other counties are added.

He also hit out at a provision which would enable junior college districts to dip into the state permanent building fund to construct facilities where none presently exist.

The proposals fail to recognize, he said, such existing institutions as the University of Idaho, Lewis-Clark normal school and Idaho State university. He asked how residents of counties in which those schools are located would feel about paying taxes to support a junior college district.

No provision is made for housing, he said. Yet students from far corners of some of the districts would have to live away from home since they would obviously be too far from such a school to commute.

Meantime, many legislators went home for the week-end to prepare for major issues expected to come before them next week. Neither house had a Saturday session.

The fifth week of the session sees COLLEGES, Page 2, Col. 8

U. S. Casualties Are High in Red Attacks

SAIGON, Viet Nam, Feb. 7 (Sunday) (UPI)—American forces in South Viet Nam received their highest casualties of the war today in fierce Viet Cong attacks. Eight American servicemen were killed and 62 wounded in two attacks on U.S. military compounds at Pleiku, 200 miles northeast of Saigon. The attacks occurred as President Johnson's special adviser, McGeorge Bundy, prepared to wind up his fact-finding mission on South Vietnamese political affairs and the anti-communist war effort.

At Pleiku, headquarters of the Vietnamese second army corps, seven Americans were killed and 48 wounded in a savage five-minute Viet Cong barrage on the U.S. Airstrip at Camp Holloway on the edge of the city.

At the same time, Viet Cong forces attacked another American compound more than two miles from Camp Holloway, killing one American and wounding 14.

Seventeen U.S. helicopters and three transport planes were destroyed in the airfield attack.

About 1,000 Americans were stationed at Pleiku, most of them living in the two main compounds which came under attack this morning.

An American military spokesman said at least 19 of the 62 wounded Americans were in serious condition. The others received minor wounds, he said.

The Viet Cong attacked with rifle fire, grenades and recoilless cannons to break into the second corps headquarters and reach the American barracks.

In the airfield attack, the Viet Cong brought mortar fire to bear on the airstrip while attacking the fenced perimeter of Camp Holloway with infantry units.

Communist casualties in the fighting were not known.

The attacks came two hours after the end of the Viet Cong one-week ceasefire for observance of the lunar new year holiday.

The communists also attacked Puy Hoa, 100 miles east of Pleiku where they destroyed an oil supply depot.

The latest casualties raised the number of American deaths in the South Viet Nam war to 385 since Jan. 1, 1961. In addition, about 1,700 Americans have been wounded, 12 are missing and 12 captives of the communists.

Saturday two U.S. army officers and an enlisted man were injured when a mine exploded. See CASUALTIES, Pg. 2, Col. 6

Ex-Premier Takes Refuge With British

SAIGON, South Viet Nam, Feb. 6 (UPI)—Former Premier Tran Van Huong, saying his life may be in danger, has taken refuge in the British embassy residence. The action may complicate the political situation in South Viet Nam even more.

The development came to light as McGeorge Bundy, President Johnson's special envoy, entered his third day of talks here with U.S. and Vietnamese officials and leaders of South Viet Nam's religious faiths.

Huong, first civilian premier since the overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime in 1963, was thrown out of office Jan. 27 in a coup led by army strong man Gen. Nguyen Khanh. Huong had been opposed by the Buddhists.

He entered the British residence Wednesday.

"As far as I know he is still there," a British spokesman said. "I understand that no formal request has been yet made for his return."

Informants said British Ambassador R. G. A. Eberington-Smith, who came under Buddhist fire in December for publicly praising Huong, granted him refuge after the former leader told him:

"I think I may be in personal danger."

Since Huong's downfall, leaflets have been scattered around Saigon calling for his return to power. Huong is not believed to have had any tie-up with the authors of the leaflets. Some officials believe groups opposed to the military leadership of Khanh may be behind the leaflets.

County, City Budget Meets Are Slated

A public hearing on the tentative county budget will be held starting at 10 a.m. Monday in the office of the county commissioner in the Twin Falls courthouse.

The public hearing on the city budget will be held at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 13.

A tentative county budget totaling $2,772,647 has been proposed by the Twin Falls county commission, and W. W. Lowery, chairman of the board of commissioners, urged all persons interested in the budget to attend the hearing. The hearing will be held all day Monday, Lowery noted.

The tentative budget is up $2,992 over last year's figure. Harold Lancaster, county clerk, said the main levy, which will be in September, should be about the same as last year — 12 on each $100 of assessed valuation — or possibly a little less.

Major increases in the budget include about $14,000 for the county clerk's office to provide for two new deputies and increased expenses; about $4,000 for the county treasurer's office mainly for new equipment.

The county hospital budget showed a proposed increase of $133,640. Most of the increase will be used to remodel hospital facilities.

The budget proposed by the Twin Falls city commission is $564 higher than the one adopted last year.

Solon Blasts Proposals By de Gaulle

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (UPI)—Sen. J. William Fulbright, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, took sharp issue today with two far-reaching proposals advanced by French President Charles de Gaulle in Paris this week.

The Arkansas Democrat said de Gaulle's suggestions for a return to the gold standard for the United Nations charter did not appear practical.

They were the two key points advanced by de Gaulle in a press conference last Thursday.

Fulbright said de Gaulle's call for a return to the gold standard was another example of the desire of some to return to "the good old days."

He said the idea might be "attractive" to some but he did not regard it as workable "in this kind of a world we have today."

Fulbright also disputed the French leader's suggestion for a five-power conference to overhaul the charter of the United Nations.

The plan has a 99-passenger capacity but the airline will observe an 80-85 passenger limit to offset the weight of ski equipment and baggage. The four-engine craft will serve the Twin Falls airport, since the Sun Valley-Halley airport is unable to accommodate planes of that size.

Western airlines opposed the application, stating its service to Sun Valley from Los Angeles is adequate for ski vacationers' needs.

The civil aeronautics board said Western airlines submitted no economic data supporting its contention. The board feels the added air service was needed and in granting Vance's application stipulated that not more than 20 one-way individual ticketed flights could be made during the 30-day period starting Saturday.

The applications for special flights during the skiing season was submitted by Vance Airlines at the request of the Janus corporation, which purchased Sun Valley last December.

U.S. Aid Will Be Increased To Thailand

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (UPI)—U.S. officials said today the United States is backing Thailand with stepped-up economic and military aid in intensified police action against communist subversion.

U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin is home for consultations on Thai security problems.

Stepped up clandestine communist radio broadcasts the past two months have been calling for the establishment of a national liberation front and a national patriotic front. But these efforts have not increased communist capability to gain a foothold in Thailand, U.S. officials said.

The main significance of the clandestine broadcasts, which are traceable to transmitters in Laos, North Viet Nam and South China, is mainly in showing communist plans for the area, sources said.

U.S. military and economic aid to Thailand has been running at about 13-14 million dollars a year. This will be stepped up, officials said, but they gave no figure.

Belgium and Congo Sign Finance Pact

BRUSSELS, Feb. 6 (UPI)—Belgium and the Congo signed an overall agreement tonight solving financial problems which had been pending since the Congo's independence in 1960.

Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe and Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak signed the agreement 10 hours behind the original schedule.

The two men were cloistered together for more than three hours in Spaak's office. Then they emerged to greet waiting newsmen and photographers and sign identical photocopies of the agreement.

A foreign-ministry spokesman said there had been "serious problems" which delayed the signing despite a week of negotiations on the subject. The spokesman did not elaborate.

During the negotiations the two parties agreed that Belgian-owned mining shares should be handed over to the young republic and the Congo's old colonial debt should be partly taken over by the Leopoldville government.

After the signing ceremony, SPAK said: "This agreement has further strengthened the links between our countries, but it will be useful only if peace and order are restored in the Congo. To this end Belgium will give all possible aid."

Blick, Murphy Explain Referendum on Tax

Reasons for the proposed Magic Valley referendum on the Idaho income tax law by initiative.

"We (Sen. Jack Blick and George Blick) believe the editors of the Twin Falls Times-News were unaware of the way the referendum language of our constitution and the statutes work. They must have been or they would not have criticized us for proposing an early referendum on the sales tax."

"It is our position that under the normal procedures, a sales tax passed by this legislature could be held in suspension by the simple act of filing enough referendum petitions with the secretary of state."

"This would leave Idaho in fiscal chaos. We consider it our responsibility to keep any such thing from happening. Rather than passing the buck to the people, we are doing exactly the opposite. We are facing the facts that a legislator must face."

"In barely 20 days the PTA's of Idaho collected 25,000 signatures in favor of the sales tax. It would be foolhardy to think that the anti-sales tax forces could do less in 60 days."

A sales tax passed without further treatment by the legislature would become law effective July 1, 1965. Should our citizens avail themselves of their right of a referendum — and we are assured that they will by the border counties and other organizations — the filing of the necessary number of signatures will automatically interrupt the collection of a sales tax until the general election in November, 1966.

"This would leave the state without funds during this 18-month interval, the legislature having relied on the sales tax."

"But, by declaring an emergency in the body of the act, which is sometimes done, the legislature would prevent the interruption of the law even though the petitions were filed, and the tax would be collectible until November, 1966."

"If the people voted out the tax in 1966, the state would remain unfunded for the following seven months until July 1, 1967, the fiscal year."

"There has been no ruling by See REFERENDUM, Pg. 2, Col. 8

Johnson Names New Navy Aide

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (UPI)—President Johnson today named Kenneth E. Belieu, 51, a World War II infantry hero, to succeed Paul E. Fay as undersecretary of the navy.

Belieu has been assistant secretary of the navy for installations and logistics since Feb. 7, 1961.

Johnson also announced he would nominate Graham C. Barnerman, a career official in the navy department, to succeed Belieu as assistant secretary.

Lincoln Day Dinner Date Is Changed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (Special)—Rep. George Hansen, R., Idaho, has announced that House Minority Leader Gerald Ford, R., Mich., will deliver a Lincoln day speech in Twin Falls on Feb. 15 rather than Tuesday, as originally planned.

Hansen said Congressman Ford had to cancel the prior date due to important legislative business which the Democratic house leadership is calling up early next week, including an attempt to subsidize shipments of foodstuffs to the United Arab Republic.

Hansen said the proper Republican date for the Lincoln day speech would be Feb. 15, which has been notified and arranged for the necessary arrangements to change the date.

Snow, Rain, Cold Air Hits Parts of U.S.

By United Press International

Heavy snow blanketed the Far West and parts of New England today and thunderstorms dropped three-inch rains along the Gulf coast.

A mid-winter thaw pushed temperatures to the spring-like 50s from the central Plains to the Middle Atlantic states.

Elv. Nev. measured five inches of snow in six hours and mountain areas of northern Arizona got eight inches of snow. Eastport, Me., collected six inches of new snow, bringing the total on the ground to about 18 inches.

A blast of arctic air invaded Montana, accompanied by strong winds and snow. The weather bureau warned travelers and livestock raisers to expect near blizzard conditions east of the Continental divide in Montana.

Heavy snow warnings were up for sections of Nevada, Utah and Arizona.

Mobile, Ala., had 3.25 inches of rain. Burwood, La., had 3.06 inches, bringing its 24-hour total to about four and one-half inches.

On the other side of the nation, half-inch rains fell from Los Angeles to Red Bluff, Calif. The Midwest thaw melted most of the snow cover in Indiana and Illinois and brought 10-foot rises on the Mississippi down to the Gulf of Mexico.

The line of 30 degrees at Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit early in the day matched the low temperature at Atlanta.

Compromise Bill for Water Resources Due Out of Committee About Feb. 15

By ROBIN TIBBETS
Times-News Staff Writer

BOISE, Feb. 6—A compromise water resources agency bill is expected to come out of the resources and conservation committee about Feb. 15, Rep. J. Vard Chaburn, R., Cassia, said today.

Chaburn, chairman of the committee, said that written testimony on the proposal will be accepted until Monday, or possibly Tuesday, and that he expects to have the compromise bill ready by the first of the week following.

He said there probably will be no hearings on the compromise bill. Three hearings were held on the two bills presented previously, the final one at 3 p.m. Friday.

"There wouldn't be much point in further hearings," the Albion Republican stated. "Both sides have presented their objections either in hearing or in writing and the final bill will be a compromise between the two."

Chaburn said he expected sharp opposition to the final bill in the house. He noted that some legislators feel that there is no necessity to establish a water resources agency, that the reclamation commission could take over the job. He explained that by the terms of the constitutional amendment approved by the voters last November, the legislature must establish such an agency but does not have to create a separate group.

"The amendment simply states that the formation of the agency shall be left to the discretion of the legislature," Chaburn explained. He said that the reclamation board could be given the title and that such action would comply with the provisions of the amendment.

Earlier, Rep. Vernon F. Ransworth, D., Gooding, said that he supports the final bill which is a combination of 24 and 65. "I doubt if we have seen the final bill yet," he opined.

This first proposal, Senate bill No. 34, was sponsored by Idaho water companies; the second, No. 87, was sponsored by the governor's water committee.

Ransworth, who has been sharply critical of the water resources proposals, has said that he feels it is "best to protect that which we are using. We must get this water to work as See COMPROMISE, Pg. 2, Col. 7

Some Ways in Curbing Teen-Age Drinking Listed

BY PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (UPI)—In Michigan, if a minor is convicted of transporting liquor in an automobile, the auto is impounded for not less than 15 days nor more than 30.

That's one way of curbing teen-age drinking. With a one-car family, the lesson sinks in—especially if dad must share in the punishment, walking to the store, taking the bus to work.

Other laws in other states aim to punish the minor who purchases or attempts to purchase liquor. Such a law, passed in Pennsylvania in 1963, imposes penalties—a fine of $25 to $100 or a jail sentence, 30 days or both.

Members of the licensed beverage industries helped to write the laws on the books. The biggest threat to their side—purchase by minors.

In many parts of the country, liquor licensees have initiated their own system of identification cards, with the support and approval of law enforcement authorities in many instances.

In Rockland county, N.Y., for example, identification cards include a photograph. The card is issued only to the age of 18, based on a birth or baptismal certificate, has been certified by a notary public.

Rockland county Liquor Dealers association members have agreed not to sell anyone who cannot present this identification card.

But solving the problem of teen-age drinking isn't as simple as providing identification cards to keep them from illegally purchasing alcoholic beverages.

Alcohol education also must be improved and strengthened in the opinion of many authorities. The preferred time for this: In junior high school—before the children have had time to drink just because "all the kids are doing it."

Mrs. Jennelle Moorhead, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, told United Press International: "Every young person has ultimately to make his own decision whether to drink or not. It is the business of the schools to give him the data on which he will base the decision."

He should receive sound scientific information about the effects of drinking and the dangers of alcoholism. This information should be bolstered by good example.

"Safety factors should be stressed. Since most young people drive cars, they must be warned that alcohol slows reflexes and impairs judgment."

Mrs. Moorhead, an educator from Eugene, Ore., maintains that parents must share the responsibility—and more.

"They must make sure their children know the facts, and they must make sensible rules for their children in the matter of drinking. Parental examples of sound attitudes and values are also important."

It doesn't mean the parents must drink in secret.

Thousands of American families are able to serve liquor in moderation to adults in their homes and yet protect their young people from the dangers involved in the misuse of alcohol.

Some fathers think nothing of giving if they have had a drink but are horrified at the thought of their sons doing so."

A. D. Buchmuller, executive director of the Child Study association of America said.

On the matter of teen-age drinking, Buchmuller maintains that each family must work out the solution for itself.

"Families differ in their cultural patterns and teen-agers differ in their ability to handle social situations at a given age," he said.

"Some parents feel it is all right for the college age youngster to have a drink at home; they believe it is better for young adults to learn to make use of drinking socially, without abusing it, in their own homes rather than to 'indulge' behind their parents' backs."

"On the other hand, there are families who believe that at no time should liquor be served to young people. Not the least of their considerations is the flouting of existing alcoholic beverage control laws."

Buchmuller believes it is better simply to avoid serving alcoholic beverages at young people's gatherings.

"Parents will do well to exert both common sense and self-control in their own social lives," he added.

Speaking for the schools, Carl A. Troester, Jr., executive secretary of the American Association for health, physical education and recreation, a department of the national education, said:

"Teen-agers want to be adults and they want to be treated like adults. This is part of the reason why something like half of all high school age youngsters take at least an occasional drink."

and why this figure is increasing. They need help in learning the responsibilities of adulthood and we can help in many ways."

Troester said they need appealing, honest health education programs that help them understand the physical and psychological imbalances created by alcohol—and to understand their responsibilities for their own lives and the lives of others when they drive.

"They need help in understanding the actual physiological effects of drinking," he said. "This is one thing the ads don't tell them."

The motivational potentialities of sports, he suggested, ought to be utilized fully in educating young people to refrain from drinking during the growing years.

"Tragedies don't need to happen in order to teach a lesson," he said. "Boys and girls learn vicariously every day. School programs need not be moralistic but they should be convincing and relevant to the experience of teen-agers."

Clark W. Blackburn, director of the Family Service association of America, said family life helps determine whether or not the adults or children have a problem with school.

The strong family has the best chance of dealing with the problem of teen-age drinking.

Briton Says Earth Expanding

LONDON, Feb. 6 (UPI)—A British physicist said Saturday there is evidence the Earth is mysteriously expanding like a balloon and is now nearly twice its original size.

The theory was put forward by Dr. R. M. Crater of the Newcastle university physics department in an article in the science magazine Nature.

Dr. Crater noted that the Earth's great land masses and their continental shelves, beneath the seas, now cover only 30 per cent of the planet's surface.

On an Earth only 55 per cent as big, these land masses could have covered the entire surface of the globe, Dr. Crater said, and the present shape of the continents is consistent with the supposition that they once comprised a complete outer shell of "smaller Earth."

Geologists have long been intrigued by the fact that, for instance, the eastern edge of the continent of South Africa would fit almost perfectly into the western edge of Africa if they were pushed together, suggesting that the land masses were in one place when the Earth was about a billion years old, and that this shell cracked and the segments drifted apart during an expansion process which has been going on for the succeeding three and one-half billion years.

Dr. Crater said the source of the vast energy needed to bring about such a ballooning of the globe is still a mystery.

Police Seek Clues in Big Gold Theft

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Feb. 6 (UPI)—A three-continent police search for clues was launched today over the theft of $280,000 worth of gold bars from an ocean liner that sailed from South Africa to England.

Police here marvelled at the massive bullion theft, suggesting the work of a criminal mastermind.

Scotland Yard, with the assistance of Interpol, today tried to determine whether the missing gold disappeared at the landing point, Durban, South Africa, or was carried off the liner Cape Town Castle at a number of ports of call where thousands of passengers could make air-line connections to South America and Europe, or whether the gold bars in 19 boxes were hidden somewhere on the 734-foot liner.

Authorities believe the plan for the theft must have been prepared in detail for months. One piece of information put it into operation. The knowledge that the 224 million dollar gold shipment in 873 boxes was too large for the regular stowage room and that the overflow would be stored in the mailroom where the theft occurred.

Squads of detectives and customs officials swarmed over the liner today in their quest for clues. They clambered through ventilation shafts, took down paneling in cabins and dismantled engine room fittings.

Chief Inspector Bertram Adams said the theft "was obviously a pretty well thought out operation." Meanwhile Scotland Yard asked Interpol to aid in the investigation in South America and Europe.

The disappearance of the gold was not discovered until yesterday when the ship docked here and after all of its remaining 67 passengers had left, along with most of the crew members.

'64 Was Big Year for U.S. Steel Firms

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 6 (AP)—The nation's steel industry has closed the books on its fattest year in history.

Profits and sales in 1964 ballooned to record heights for many steelmakers.

And 1965 could be just as good—perhaps better.

The first hurdle to another amazing year in 1965 may be the biggest—a new contract with the million-member United Steelworkers of America (USW).

Negotiations on a new contract with the "Big 11" basic steel companies are nearing the end of a long recess, agreed to by both sides until the union's internal power struggle is decided.

USW President David J. McDonald and the union's No. 2 man, secretary-treasurer F. W. Abel, are in the last week of their campaigns for the $50,000-a-year presidency of the union, the nation's third largest.

In McDonald's words, it has been the "toughest and dirtiest" campaign in his career. He has been in office 12 years and is seeking a fourth four-year term.

The union elections take place Tuesday, and the outcome is bound to affect the negotiations after that. If McDonald should lose, he would be a "lame duck" president until June 1, when his current term expires.

The union will be free to strike May 1, if no agreement is reached by then.

That fat 1964 year certainly will figure in the resumed negotiations.

Last week, while he was at a local radio station (KRRK) taping an interview, McDonald watched a story moving on a UPI teletype printer. The story was about the 1964 earnings statement of Bethlehem Steel corporation, the second largest steelmaker.

"Say, can I have this?" he asked.

He tore off the page copy and put it in his pocket.

That pocket, and Abel's too, is likely to be quite full of similar reports when the union negotiators get together again with their industry counterparts in February.

Here is how 10 of the "Big 11" basic steel producers performed in 1964:

United States Steel corporation—16 per cent increase in earnings; 14 per cent in sales.

Bethlehem—44 per cent increase in profits; 50 per cent in sales.

Republic—More than 30 per cent increase in profits; 14 per cent in sales.

Jones and Laughlin—35 per cent increase in earnings; 13 per cent in sales.

National (reporting for all subsidiaries including Great Lakes Steel, one of the "big 11")—22 per cent increase in income; 14 per cent in sales.

Inland—26 1/2 per cent increase in income; 8 per cent in sales.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube—40 per cent increase in profits; 46 per cent in sales.

Republic—22 per cent increase in income; 14 per cent in sales.

Pittsburgh—Nearly 30 per cent increase in profits; 14 per cent in sales.

Colorado Iron and Fuel—Better than 80 per cent increase in earnings; a small increase in sales.

Wheeling—Final 1964 figures not announced yet.

News Around Idaho

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—An increase in the legal driving age from 16 to 18 was proposed yesterday in the Idaho senate. The only extension under terms of a bill introduced by the transportation committee, would be persons 14 or older who had completed an approved driver training course. The increase in the age limit would be effective next July 1. The bill also would authorize operation of approved driver training programs by private schools approved by the department of law enforcement.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—Art Kent, news director of station KUTV, Salt Lake City, was elected today president of the Utah-Idaho Associated Press Broadcasters. Kent, former vice president of the Broadcasters, succeeds Dick Eardly, news director of KBOI radio and television, Boise. Vern Moore, KIDQ, Boise, replaced Kent as vice president.

POCATELLO, Feb. 6 (AP)—The employment picture in southeast Idaho is normal for this time of the year, according to L. R. Levering, manager of the Pocatello employment security agency office. Many construction workers returned to work this week because of favorable weather. Two ESA personnel are at Idaho State university taking applications from students who want off-campus jobs. Persons drawing unemployment insurance in Pocatello totaled 221 during the week, compared with 625 last week and 791 a year ago. The totals for the six-county area served by the Pocatello office are 1,103 at present, 1,205 a week ago, and 1,440 a year ago.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—Associated Press Broadcasters from Utah and Idaho commended the Idaho legislature today for permitting recordings of its sessions and called on Utah's legislature to do likewise. Views on legislative news coverage were expressed by the AP Utah-Idaho Broadcasters association in a resolution adopted at its annual meeting in Boise. "The use of recordings has increased the accuracy of legislative coverage," the resolution said, "and the prestige of the legislature and its individual members." The Utah-Idaho Associated Press Broadcasters association urges the legislature of the State of Utah to adopt similar policies in order to increase public information and freedom of the press in the state of Utah.

POCATELLO, Feb. 6 (AP)—L. E. Gray, Nampa, was elected president of the Idaho Concrete and Aggregate Association here today. Gray succeeds Charles Horrocks, Blackfoot. He was elected on the closing day of the association's two-day convention. Elected vice presidents were Wallace J. Burns, Idaho Falls, former chairman of the state highway board, and R. E. Davis, Twin Falls. Named directors of the association were A. B. Farnsworth, Pocatello; G. H. Gray, Boise; John Smith, Idaho Falls; Robert Toles, Nampa; and Vern M. Hofmann, Burley. Approximately 40 members of the association attended the convention. The meeting ended after a banquet.

KALL radio was presented the plaque at the AP Broadcasters annual meeting in Boise today. Idaho Gov. Robert E. Smylie made the presentation to KALL News Director Bruce Miller. A Salt Lake City television station—KUTV—and a Boise radio station—KBOI-AM—won excellence awards for general news operations. Merit citation in the news operations category went to KALL and KRXX of Rexburg. Top reporting award was presented to KBOI television of Boise for its study of railroad crossings in the city. Merit certificates were won by KUTV and by KRXX, Provo. The excellence award for editorialism went to KRXX of Rexburg. Merit winners were KALL and KRXX of Salmon. KRXX also won an excellence certificate for farm news.

POCATELLO, Feb. 6 (AP)—A 73-year-old Aberdeen woman was in fair condition at Pocatello hospital today with multiple fractures and lacerations suffered in a traffic accident Thursday. Mrs. John Larson was injured when her husband pulled from a stop sign into the path of a car driven by Larry Peterson, 19. The collision threw Larson, 80, from the car. He is reported in fair condition.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—Plans for major expansion of the Bogus Basin ski area north of Boise were announced today by Earl Chandler, president of the Bogus Basin Recreational Association, Inc. He said they involve construction of two new double chairlifts and numerous ski runs, utilizing the slopes of Shafter butte, adjacent to the present ski area. The development will make an additional 760 acres available for skiing, Chandler said, increasing the total to 940 acres. When work is complete the ski lifts will have a capacity of 4,440 passengers per hour, he said. Plans include a two and one-half mile extension of the present road to the top of the butte, and a "recreation way" from Boise to McCall. Costs of the expansion is estimated at $350,000, Chandler said.

ARCO, Feb. 6 (AP)—Nine teen-agers have pleaded guilty in probate court here to charges of consuming beer and intoxicating liquor. The charges resulted from an investigation of the death last summer of Kent Reed, Howe teen-ager. Reed was found dead Aug. 7, 1964, the day after a party at the Wendell Hansen home near Howe. The nine youths, from Howe and Arco, were sentenced by Probate Judge Edmund L. Giamber. Five boys and girls were sentenced to 30 days house arrest, 60 days probation to their parents, 20 hours of work for the Butte high school, and 30-day suspension of driver's licenses. The house arrest requires the youths to be at home with parents or under their supervision every evening after 7 p.m., except for school-approved functions pertaining to class work. If the teen-agers attend any such school function during the 30 days, they will have to serve extra days of house arrest. The girl who arranged the party was sentenced to 45 days house arrest, 90 days probation to her parents, 20 hours work for the school and 30-day suspension of driver's license.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—The heavy snow pack on Idaho mountains "would produce damaging volumes of water on many rivers" even if spring brings no rain, the soil conservation service reports. "A continuation of storm patterns established so far this year," said Morlan W. Nelson, snow survey supervisor, "would pose problems never before experienced in Idaho." Nelson said snow fall in the next two months will be the key to flood damage that can be expected during spring runoff. Gov. Robert E. Smylie said earlier in the week the odds are one in five the Boise river runoff could reach 21,000 feet per second, despite relief measures begun today. This could result in 2.2 million dollars flood damage to communities along the Boise valley, according to U.S. army corps of engineers. Flood-control reservoirs on the Boise river are being drained beginning today in an attempt to clear them to handle spring runoff. The river is to be kept at a constant 6,500 per second flow through April. Similar measures on the Snake and other rivers are under study, Smylie said. River basins that already have "critically high snow cover," said Nelson, are the Boise, the Big and Little Lost rivers in southeast Idaho and the Big and Little Wood rivers in south central Idaho. Snow pack in those water sheds is 1.7 to 1.8 times normal, Nelson said.

POCATELLO, Feb. 6 (AP)—With two and one-half weeks of late registration yet to go, Idaho State university had enrolled 3,593 students Friday night. That compares with total second semester registration a year ago of 3,434, and only 2,800 in 1963. First semester enrollment this year was 3,671, a record. The total for the second semester is expected to be short of that by about 200. The deadline for late registration is Feb. 23. Registrar Allen B. Jones said.

Special Unit Tackles Little Viet Nam Problems

ABERDEEN, Md., Feb. 6 (AP) — While diplomats and politicians in nearby Washington ponder the big problem of Viet Nam, a band of soldiers and scientists here are tackling some of the little problems in that trouble spot.

For example: A U. S. helicopter skitters along the treetops, its fragile arms flailing the mugs of its engine room alerting rebels for miles around. As the chopper nears a clearing to land, Vietnamese government troops, a communist snipe line perched in a tree along the line of flight opens fire. A shot strikes a vital engine part and the aircraft drops like a wounded bird.

Another helicopter makes it to the clearing. Seconds after the last government soldiers hop out, he and his comrades, framed in the gunshots of waiting guer-

Californian Seriously Hurt In Car Accident

John Price, 28, San Francisco, Calif., was listed in serious condition Saturday at Valley Memorial hospital where he was taken after the car he was driving hit a slick spot, veered off the right side of the highway, spun around across the highway and flipped end over end three times.

He was driving a 1963 Pontiac convertible. The investigating officer noted that he was wearing a seat belt. It took about 30 minutes to free him from the wreckage of the car.

No citation was reported issued. The state patrolman was assisted in his investigation by Twin Falls county sheriff.

Frontier Grange Opposes Plan

HAZELTON, Feb. 6 — The resolutions committee of the Frontier Grange is preparing a resolution opposing a bill introduced in the state legislature which would redistrict all county roads controlled by a one-county unit.

Luis Alastra presented information on the proposal at a meeting of the group Monday night. Mrs. Henry Steinmetz, home economics chairman, reported the Grange would serve the Ida-Gem directors meeting Thursday.

Women members were asked to donate one tea towel to the Grange hall Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hamilton sang several sacred songs.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Dale Kudd.

Cold Stork

WOODSCROSS, Feb. 6 (AP) — A chunk of ice weighing 30 pounds crashed through the roof of a boiler room at Phillips Petroleum refinery, and nobody knows where it came from.

The mystery was made more mysterious when aeronautics officials discounted the possibility that it could have been dropped off an airplane. Engineers were informed that ice on aircraft usually flakes off in small crystals.

James Kenney, engineer at the refinery, said the ice left a dent in the roof as big as a washtub.

Queen Visits Old Castles In Ethiopia

GONDAR, Ethiopia, Feb. 6 (AP) — Queen Elizabeth visited the romantic 17th century castles and ruins of Gondar today after a night in a camp 9,000 feet up in the Ethiopian mountains.

The queen and Prince Philip, who are on an eight-day state visit, arrived with Emperor Haile Selassie at the camp in the early evening.

Hundreds of Amharic horsemen greeted them, charging round the camp in a great cavalcade of color.

Troops of the emperor's imperial bodyguard surrounded the camp, with machine-gun posts commanding the approach.

It is only during Haile Selassie's reign that Ethiopia could claim to be a united nation and the tough hill men of Gondar still can be unpredictable.

Guantanamo Base Has Water

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP) — Water may cost four times as much today as it did a year ago at the Guantanamo naval base in Cuba, but it is leaving a much sweeter taste in the mouth of the U. S. government.

The reason the water seems more palatable these days, even though it comes from a seawater desalting plant, is because today is the first anniversary of the cutting of the pipes which once tied the big base to a water supply in the interior of the communist-controlled island.

No water had flowed through sections of the 10 million pipes for more than three months when they were cut by the Premier, Fidel Castro, shut off the supply during a dispute over the arrest of Cuban fishermen the most that was ever bought off the coast of Florida in the fall of 1963.

For a while the navy transported water to the big base by ship until completion of water desalting plant allowed the base to manufacture enough fresh water to meet necessities.

The navy announced today that the last of three 750,000-gal. shortages are streaming back to the base, with 250 returning in January. The base population, which had dropped to a low of 8,000 on Jan. 1, will soon be back to normal 10,500.

The desalting plant turns out 10 million gallons of water a day, but it is not run through several beds of limestone before it can be considered potable. But the time to manufacture enough fresh water to meet necessities and the result is acceptable.

Family dependents sent home from the last of three 750,000-gal. shortages during the year-long water

1,000 Man-Made Objects Have Been Orbiting Since '57

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—More than 1,000 man-made objects—satellites, spacecraft, capsules and assorted bits and pieces thereof—have been placed in orbit since the space age dawned Oct. 4, 1957.

Tabulations prepared by the Goddard Space Flight center at nearby Greenbelt, Md., show that 243 of these objects were satellites launched by the United States or its friendly partners, and 64 were Soviet-launched satellites.

Of that total, 103 U.S.-sponsored satellites are still in orbit, along with 16 made in Russia. The record lists as "decayed" satellites—those no longer in orbit—140 of United States and 78 of Soviet origin.

Many of the satellites separated after launch into two or more space objects, or broke apart accidentally or by design to produce space junk. The worst offender on this score was the vehicle which on June 29, 1961, produced the transit 4A navigation satellite, the Injun satellite, and 204 pieces of metal. All are still in orbit.

The next most prolific source of space debris was a Soviet launch of Oct. 24, 1962, which produced 24 orbiting objects. The last of these dropped out of the sky in late February, 1963.

Goddard's records identify 469 hunks of junk of U.S. origin, and 182 of the Russian variety, as having orbited the Earth at one time or another. Of these, 372 U.S. pieces and 16 Soviet items are still in orbit.

The compilation does not take into account some 400 million half-inch dipoles or wires, called Project West Ford, space needles, launched by the United States in May, 1962, and presumably orbiting in a continuous band, some five miles wide and 25 miles thick, encircling the Earth.

Also still in orbit, but around the sun rather than the Earth, are seven U.S. spacecraft, and six pieces of junk, and six Soviet spacecraft.

The U.S. spacecraft now ranging far out in space include Pioneer 4, launched in 1959; Pioneer 5, 1960; 3, Mariner 2, 1962; and Mariner 3 and 4, 1964.

In similar solar orbits are the empty rockets for Rangers 3 and 5, Mariner 2 and 4, and for Rangers 4 and 7, the two spacecraft that hit the moon.

Soviet vehicles in orbit around the sun include Lunik 1, launched in 1959; a 1961 Venus probe, a 1962 Mars probe, Lunik 4 which missed the moon in 1963, and Zond 1 and Zond 2 in 1964.

Soviet Russia has orbited and recovered five manned spacecraft, the U.S. four. Like their

Times-News Forum—Voice of the Reader

Gooding Woman Asks Critics To Read Forum Letter Again

Editor, Times-News:

My dear people who answered my forum, why don't every one of you reread my forum?

Did I say deformed children made me sick? Did I say all mongoloid babies were caused by birth control pills?

No, I did not. I said, and I quote, "Birth control pills can cause mongoloid babies."

Yes, it makes me sick to see those tiny little babies advertised on television. I feel real sorry for them. Everyone who walks down the street with their eyes open and their heads down so they can see over their noses can see deformed babies and older people every day. They also see posters advertising them.

If the people want to donate they are going to. Those who donate already know about these drives and also the ones who don't donate know about them, too.

Why do they advertise them on television? Doesn't it cost the March of Dimes money to advertise?

Will you won't the money for advertising come out of what you donate instead of research? People already know you don't have to advertise on television. Television isn't the place such things should be advertised all the time.

Why don't every one of you who griped so much reread my forum? I wrote it for the people who are taking birth control pills, have taken them, or are thinking about taking them.

I'm trying to get the users to stop and think and see what might be happening to them or has happened or could happen to them for their own good, not mine.

"Prevention" is a naturopathic magazine and I wonder how many good things the American Medical association says about the naturopaths?

You know you can get sued for slander. Why should "Prevention" risk such an article if it weren't true?

Filer Woman Defends March Of Dimes, Research Efforts

Editor, Times-News:

I would like to defend the March of Dimes in its fight against birth defects.

Our son was born with a birth defect. His case is not as serious as some, and we hope he will be normal in a few years after surgery.

He has required special medical care since birth and, thanks to the March of Dimes, he has received the best.

Birth defects were as prevalent in past decades as they are now. But parents were ashamed and in some cases, kept the children behind closed doors.

Contributions to the March of Dimes helped physicians and scientists in their search for the cause and cure of birth defects. There is new hope for the more than 700 babies born each day in America with birth defects.

Yes, "stop and think, people," as Sharon stated. Through research the National Foundation virtually stamped out polio.

I believe there were only several cases reported in the entire United States in 1964. If polio can be conquered, why not birth defects?

This research could not be possible except for the dimes and dollars contributed by people all over America who care.

Utah School Board Election Plan Lauded by Area Woman

Editor, Times-News:

I have a letter dated Oct. 22, 1961, to C. E. Price, then superintendent of the Hagerman school, and from E. Allen Bateman, Utah state superintendent of public instruction, which explains how the entire state board of education is elected in Utah.

The board has nine members, three of whom are elected for six-year terms, each two-year period, at the time of the general election in November of even-numbered years.

The election would be on a non-partisan ballot and the elections would be by districts corresponding to the judicial districts of which there are seven in Utah. Each district elects one member of the state board of education, except Salt Lake district, which elects three.

The first elections under this law were November, 1962.

The law set up a fee of $900 a year and traveling expenses for board members. It provided that the state board of education should appoint and fix salaries for all its appointees including the state board of public instruction.

On Oct. 5, 1961, the state board of education appointed the former elected state superintendent under the new organization. That was E. Allen Bateman.

I think this sounds like a very good way to organize our Idaho schools. Instead of having the

PTA Efforts Draw Comment Of Hayden Lake Resident

Editor, Times-News:

Who directs the PTA? Who thought up the plan to get 100-odd signatures on petitions and pressure Idaho legislators to spend more money for education?

PTA national bylaws (1961-1962), Secs. 1 and 3 specifically state: "The purpose of the local congress units shall be to promote the objects and policies of the national congress." That does not state the objects and policies of the parents of the children.

Local members, twigs and leaves of the mighty PTA tree, do not have the slightest degree of influence on the national or international level of the PTA.

The national PTA supports UNESCO and UNESCO's program of education under international control.

When you join the PTA you support UNESCO, world government and world citizenship. The plan is to work for state aid, (the PTA tree trunk has asked for 100-odd signatures procuring for state aid). Next, the plan calls for federal aid and federal control and then UNESCO and international control of our schools.

I would say to you to judge this tree of parents and teachers as in the words of Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount, "Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire. Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them."

Let us be grateful and yet not so blinded by the good works of local PTA individuals that we heed not the odor of larger fruits borne by this mighty tree of parents and teachers.

Oregonian Reads Criticism Of Defect War With Dismay

Editor, Times-News:

In the Sunday Forum I read with dismay a statement by Mrs. Tadlock of Gooding, criticizing the war on birth defects by the March of Dimes.

On July 19, 1957, I gave birth to my second child, a beautiful girl with eyes as big as saucers. At six months of age she was put in a special brace for a congenital hip deformity. She wore this brace for two and a half years and is now completely normal, but could have been a deformed cripple.

Mrs. Tadlock, I do not use birth control pills and seldom if ever take even aspirin or drugs for a cold.

I never medicate during a pregnancy, nor do I have any unusual trouble during carriage, labor or delivery. Why did it happen?

Perhaps birth control pills are what you claim. Scientists have proved that even penicillin and one of the "B" vitamins cause birth defects in mice. This test of drugs is a long and growing one.

The March of Dimes has almost obliterated polio. How can you or any other speak out against an organization like this turning their dedicated genius to work on the heart-breaking problem of birth defects?

Unitarian Ad Misunderstood By Jaycees, Writer Avers

Editor, Times-News:

The young Jaycees from Buhl are just as badly misinformed as the young mother from Gooding.

How many intelligent persons could misconstrue the wording in the Unitarian advertisement in your paper? Is beyond me.

The old cliché, "We believe in the freedom of religion, but..." is the same old line heard last year. Remember? "I believe in civil rights, but..."

It is indeed true that "a little learning is a dangerous thing." If you ask me, they'd do well to send for the booklet mentioned in the ad. However, on second thought, I've decided to send them one myself.

Incidentally, most of the people know that besides serving the public, newspapers are in business to try and make a profit, the same as other businesses, and they do not necessarily agree or disagree with everything sent to them for publication.

Reverend Notes Type Error in Topic of Sermon

Editor, Times-News:

The public service of the Friday church notices in the Times-News is much appreciated.

Last week, however, a simple type-setting error in my Sunday evening sermon topic was cause for embarrassment. The title should have read: "Communism and the National Council" and not "Communism and the National Council."

The error would imply that we promote communism in the NCC. None of the more than 1,500 Conservative Baptist association churches in any way support the NCC. We believe it would be incongruous with Baptist policy, which demands local autonomy, to do so.

T. F. Resident Lauds Editorial On Punishment

Editor, Times-News:

Just a few lines to commend your paper on the splendid article in the editorial, "Not Ready Yet."

I wish you would write it again, and put it at the top of the column. I know a lot of people missed it.

There is a poll being taken now in the Christian Herald that I am anxious to see the result on this business of capital punishment. I never could understand how two wrongs make a right.

If we had laws with teeth in them, so as to put a killer in confinement for life, and I mean life, and not be able to get a parole in 10 years or so, I think the killers would think twice before killing.

Woman Praises Efforts to Help Less Fortunate

Editor, Times-News:

Thank God for people like Mrs. Ray Crawford, Larry A. Mambert, Twin Falls, and Mrs. Bonita Mason Buhl, people who have sympathy for others who are less fortunate than themselves.

I'm glad there aren't too many people like Sharon Tadlock who have no sympathy or charity in their hearts.

Be glad, Sharon, that you have a healthy child. Not everyone is that fortunate. Although you think it can never happen to you, you don't be too sure.

We all feel that way, but when it does happen, it's pretty hard to take.

MRS. B. W. WATSON (Idaho)

Woman Praises Efforts to Help Less Fortunate

Editor, Times-News:

You "no hardship tax" editorial of Jan. 20 made me sad. I had trouble sleeping. You have obviously never had to count pennies.

According to your figures the sales tax for an income of $1,500 would be about $105. Ask a man with a family of say three children to buy shoes and all the other necessities for, if it wouldn't be a hardship, that $105 would buy shoes and they always come hard for a growing family.

That is less than $300 a month and sit down before you go buy groceries or clothing and figure to the penny what you can spend. You have never had to figure pennies or you would not think it is just a "nuisance tax."

You ask anyone living on a pension or social security if a 3 cent tax wouldn't cut down their income. The dollar is worth about 47 cents now and you want to make it 44 cents.

Writer Says Answer to His Forum Letter Missed Point

Editor, Times-News:

It seems rather hopeless to answer Mr. McCullough's letter this way since he missed the entire point of the first one, but I shall try.

First, I did not say that I approved of gambling or drinking. In fact, I stated that I do not gamble and that it was none of my business if my neighbor did. I do not approve of overindulgence of any kind, but that does not mean that I should pass a law that my neighbor shouldn't follow his own practices and beliefs.

I wish to remind Mr. McCullough that my first letter dealt with taxation and referred to taxation throughout.

I am in complete agreement with Mr. McCullough that there have been many deaths caused by drinking, but the number one killer on the highway is speed and lack of consideration for one's neighbor.

If you will take a drive around the churches on Sunday you shall see very quickly what I mean by lack of consideration in driving.

I repeat from my first letter: "I feel that it is the business of a church to teach the word of God, not to dictate politics."

My entire point in the letter was that tax-exempt groups are trying to dictate policy on tax revenue issues.

If Mr. McCullough will take the time to read over my letter I am sure he will see that the point of it was:

"There are a great many churches and a great many men. Some approve of indulgence in alcohol to moderation and some disapprove of coffee, but who am I to say one is right and the other is wrong?"

My point is still, indifference in tax revenue issues by tax-exempt groups, not what is right and what is wrong.

The Bible tells me I have to be right to judge my fellow man. Maybe you are exempt from this passage. I do not feel that I am so I shall continue to leave judgment up to God.

RAY T. CRANDAL (Twin Falls)

Controversial Forum Letter Defended by T.F. Woman

Editor, Times-News:

Has this become a lost art? I wonder how many people trace "all" of the avenues into which the money goes that supports the "tax-exempt" foundations?

I wonder if this would be a very enlightening program for the un-informed?

Speaking of Mrs. Tadlock's forum concerning birth defects, it seems to me she did not direct her forum to mothers of mongoloid children who had not taken "birth control" pills, but to those who had.

I did not feel she meant the children themselves made her sick, just the commercializing of their defects. I wonder how many of her critics have studied chemistry and realize that if you upset the "God-given" body chemistry and functioning processes of the human body that you are asking for trouble within the body at some later date?

Don't the thyroid glands have a great deal to do with the full cycle of birth—from start to finish? Don't the thyroid glands control weight and growth in the human body?

I feel Mrs. Tadlock is trying to share some of her wisdom with us by letting us know that there is a possibility that "birth-control" pills can cause certain elements and deformities I don't think the naturopathic physicians should all be kicked because they have to have schooling and there are many brilliant people among them who "hide their candle under a bushel."

I feel that many of us have looked beyond our nose and nose information about the after-effects or side-effects of "pills." We are just interested in the easiest way of taking care of the problem confronting us—not caring about the problems we might have in the future and taking the most convenient and easy way out.

Many thanks to you Mrs. Tadlock, I appreciate your drive even if no one else does.

Sales Tax, Closed Hearings On Issue Scored by T.F. Man

Editor, Times-News:

The Idaho house revenue and taxation committee has closed its hearings on the sales tax and public hearings have been abandoned throughout the state.

The hearings were not closed until the corporations, industries, chambers of commerce and the teachers, lawyers and lobbyists had brainwashed the committee.

The first state sales tax was enacted by Mississippi in 1932 for the sole purpose of raising money for the state.

Since very few were property owners and their individual incomes were too low for taxation. The politicians in other states saw a rainbow in the sky with bags of pennies at each end, so in the following year 12 additional states imposed a similar tax.

A few states that enacted the tax as a temporary depression measure allowed the tax to expire, but by 1937 state sales taxes were in force in 23 states. At the present time 38 states impose the form of taxation and 25 states impose a retail tax on public utilities.

The rates on retail sales public utilities vary from 10 per cent. There are 12 states that do not have a sales tax. Do they meet their obligations?

These states are solvent. Some of the states having a sales tax are: the red, a sales tax is effectively regressive. Taxes according to the ability-to-pay principle is the foundation of taxation. It should be of all forms of taxation.

Who are the people who are crying for a sales tax?

It's the teachers' association, Idaho State Chamber of Commerce, Associated Taxpayers, corporations and industries.

The sales tax will benefit corporations if the property is reduced, but most of all it is ones on the public pay rolls.

They are willing to tax the income people to fill their pockets. Do you know anyone who on the public pay list? Johnson's poverty list.

According to your figures the sales tax for an income of $1,500 would be about $105. Ask a man with a family of say three children to buy shoes and all the other necessities for, if it wouldn't be a hardship, that $105 would buy shoes and they always come hard for a growing family.

That is less than $300 a month and sit down before you go buy groceries or clothing and figure to the penny what you can spend. You have never had to figure pennies or you would not think it is just a "nuisance tax."

You ask anyone living on a pension or social security if a 3 cent tax wouldn't cut down their income. The dollar is worth about 47 cents now and you want to make it 44 cents.

As the members enjoyed their meal, comments such as "Did you see me go backward?" or "I

To clean and freshen the complexion, ease away wrinkles and unwanted expression lines and put more life into your skin, try complexion steaming with a towel over your head, steam over a basin of hot water in which a teaspoon of lemon juice can be added if available. Beforehand anoint the skin with oil of olive so when the hot steam clears the pores the oil penetrates. After steaming, tone with a lemon jelly freshener and smooth the skin in youthful beauty with a film of oil.

JEROME, Feb. 6—A review of an article by Sen. Frank Church, D. Ida., in Look magazine entitled "Conspiracy, USA," was given by Mrs. Violet Harms, Wendell, at a meeting of the Democratic Women's club this week at the home of Mrs. J. Emmett Smith.

Senator Church points out how people and organizations of the "extreme right" are disrespected for public officials and government and create fear by pointing the finger at former President Dwight Eisenhower, Chief Justice Earl Warren, the late John Foster Dulles and Gen. George Marshall, as helping the communist conspiracy.

The Jerome Democratic women voted to present the book, "The Strange Tactics of Extremism," by Harry and Bonar Owens, street, to all Jerome county public libraries and American government and history high school classes.

The book presents information about the John Birch society, Dr. Carl McIntire and other groups with patriotic sounding names, Mrs. Harms said.

Legislature Activity

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—Trade practices described as deceptive would be prohibited under a bill introduced yesterday in the Idaho senate. The measure authorizes courts to prohibit trade practices if they are proved to be deceptive. It defines a long list of practices considered deceptive.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—A bill that would erase the $10,000 limitation insurers now enjoy in suits arising from damages caused by a person who has since died was passed in the house yesterday by a vote of 49-16. Merits of the bill were argued by separate interests with insurance representatives in general being opposed while lawyers and those who pay insurance bills being in favor. Rep. Eugene L. Bush, R., Bonneville, floor manager for the bill, said it merely "clarifies" an existing statute. Presently, he said, an insurance company is liable for only $10,000 if courts find a deceased person was guilty of a wrong which resulted in injury or death to another.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—The Idaho house received yesterday a bill providing for creation of an Idaho pea and lentil commission. The commission's activities, including research and promotion, would be financed through an assessment against pea and lentil growers. It would be made up of five growers and two processors or dealers with the commissioner of agriculture and the dean of the college of agriculture of the University of Idaho serving as ex-officio members.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—The senate completed action yesterday on a bill its sponsor said is intended to simplify bill collection work of irrigation districts which furnish water for irrigation and domestic purposes. Sen. Carl Moore, D., Nez Perce, said the measure, passed 30-1, which now goes to the governor, would give districts power to enforce payment for domestic water without suing the tax lien route. They would be authorized to discontinue service to customers 10 days in arrears.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—Legislative approval of a bill introduced yesterday in the Idaho house would require the commissioner of agriculture to establish a meat inspection division within his department. Services of the division would be available to any qualified slaughter house, meat packing plant or similar establishment upon application to the commissioner. A companion measure would prohibit charging of a fee for services performed by the meat inspection division.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—The senate yesterday put on its third reading calendar for Monday a bill making the office of state mine inspector appointive, instead of elective. The measure carried out a recommendation of Gov. Robert E. Smylie.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—The Idaho senate approved unanimously without discussion yesterday a letter thanking the speaker of the house for calling to the attention of the legislators rules which prohibit criticism of one body by the other. Sen. Jack Murphy, R., Lincoln, president pro-tem, read to the senate a letter replying to one received by Rep. Pete T. Cenarrusa, R., Blaine, the house speaker, which was read from the senate rostrum. Murphy's letter thanked Cenarrusa and commented that "no member should violate rules." Cenarrusa's letter said the house considers "any criticism on the floor of either house a breach of order."

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—A memorial urging congress to increase sugar beet quotas to a minimum of the 1965 restricted acreage production was introduced yesterday in the Idaho house. "Unless the sugar beet industry gets relief," the memorial states, "with present inventories and production possibilities, it will face additional severe production cutbacks."

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—Creation of an Idaho beef promotion committee is authorized in a bill introduced yesterday in the Idaho house. The committee would be made up of one representative from both the Idaho Cattlemen's association and the Idaho Cattle Feeders' association, who would appoint a third member. The committee would be authorized to accept and spend contributions for beef promotion.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—A bill which would "allow the Idaho housewife the privilege of purchasing the same first-class potatoes as those sent out of the state" was introduced yesterday in the Idaho house of representatives. It changes the working of an existing law which allows rejects or culls to be marketed in Idaho.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—The Idaho senate killed yesterday a bill which would have permitted the state highway board to increase the legal weight of motor vehicles. Sen. Lloyd Barron, R., Camas, chairman of the senate transportation and defense committee, said the legislation was recommended by the council of state governments. He said it was intended to make Idaho law conform to proposed new federal motor vehicle weight limitations which are expected to be effective next July 1. But Sen. Harold Collett, D., Elmore, said he feared the heavier vehicles would damage present highways and Sen. Perry Swisher, R., Bannock, said it would be at least two years before the interstate highway will be completed across southern Idaho. Until then, he said, he saw little need for heavier trucks. Sen. Fred Glenn, D., Adams, urged approval of the bill, noting that it simply gave the highway board authority to increase the limits. The voting was 18 to 22 but Swisher served notice he might move for reconsideration Monday.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—The Idaho house completed legislative action yesterday on a measure authorizing the commissioners of the Lewiston port district to issue revenue bonds to finance construction of port facilities. The vote in the house on the measure, which implements a constitutional amendment ratified by voters at last November's general election, was 63-0. It now goes to the governor for signature. Rep. Ed Williams, D., Nez Perce, floor manager for the bill, noted that the Snake river will become navigable from the Columbia river to Lewiston with the completion of a series of three dams, about 1970. "Adoption of the measure," he said, "will insure the development of the port of Lewiston. The port issue itself can now go into the business of issuing these revenue bonds and begin to acquire lands and facilities," he said. Williams said he has been advised that bonding companies in New York and Chicago have expressed interest in the port development and that several trucking firms have acquired additional land for expansion of their Lewiston operations. In a statement issued after passage of the bill the Nez Perce county delegation expressed its thanks to the legislature and "the people of Idaho who have made this possible."

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—The Idaho house received yesterday a bill which would authorize appointment of an attorney to represent the people of the state in electric and natural gas hearings before the public utilities commission. The appointed attorney would also be authorized to represent the people in any appeals from PUC decisions and initiate appeals if he felt they were necessary. The measure was drafted by Rep. Robert Huntley, D., Bannock, and introduced by the insurance, public utilities and banking committee. "The PUC sits in a judicial capacity and under the present system an attorney appointed to represent them by the attorney general is the adviser to that commission," Huntley said. "Presently, attorneys representing the power company and other interests involved but no attorney represent the people," he said. "Inability in a rate hearing the commission as a judicial body must take a compromise position between the interests of various parties and if no person is representing the people the commission does not have the benefit of those interests which are strictly the interests of the people in general." The bill, Huntley said, "is no reflection on the discerners involved in the past and no reflection on the commission but is merely to make certain the interests of the people in general are represented."

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—Two amendments dealing with constitutional restrictions on corporations were proposed yesterday in the Idaho house of representatives. One would limit voting rights to holders of stock granted such rights by the articles of incorporation. The other would require the approval of a majority of stockholders before a corporation could increase its stock.

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—Submission of the gambling question to the people was urged yesterday by Sen. William Roden, R., Ada. He spoke on the floor of the senate, referring to activities of the legalized casino-type gambling. Roden, holding up an information sheet issued by the organization, said that "on the surface it looks like a panacea." But he said it is anything but that. Pending in the house are two proposed constitutional amendments. One would prohibit all forms of gambling and the other would permit only pari-mutuel betting. Roden said he hopes that one of the proposals is submitted to the people for a decision.

Formation of New Major Grid League Finalized

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (AP)—A 10-team professional football league was formed today with a combination of clubs from the United and Atlantic Coast leagues, plus Philadelphia and Toronto. "We are in business—all we need is a name," said Alex Schoenbaum of Charleston, W. Va., chairman of the executive committee of the United Football league.

Celler Seeks Test Case on Braves' Move

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 6 (AP)—Emmanuel Celler, D., N. Y., chairman of the house judiciary committee, said today he hoped Milwaukee County would file an anti-trust suit against the Milwaukee Braves and others.

Cells said "almost all sport has been squeezed out of baseball" since the 1922 decision of the supreme court exempting baseball from the antitrust laws.

Appearing on a taped radio program with Rep. Henry Reuss, D., Wis., Celler expressed the opinion that the chances for overthrowing the 1922 ruling were good because "all that's left of baseball is the chase for the almighty dollar. And it's purely a business operation."

Reuss has been urging the county to file an antitrust suit to compel the major leagues to keep a franchise in Milwaukee. The Braves will transfer to Atlanta in 1966 after fulfilling their contract to play their 1965 home games in Milwaukee County stadium.

Cells said there had been "decided changes" in baseball since the supreme court's ruling of 1922.

"Baseball as it is today, organized baseball, is a billion dollar proposition," said Celler.

Wilkins-Led Bears Rout Redskins

GOODING, Feb. 6.—Gene Wilkins, a recent Bliss transfer from Gooding, proved his worth last night as he paced the Bears to a 72-53 victory over the Gooding State Redskins.

Both teams played a tight first half but the Bears, with Wilkins, Terry Watkins and Red Pruitt hitting in the double figures, opened up the game in the second.

Lance Arve and Bert Reins both hit over 20 points for the Redskins but had little backing up from their teammates.

The victory helped ease the sting of an overtime loss to the Tigers at Jerome early in January.

ALL ANGLES

BY LARRY HOVEY

There are three-week gaps between the high school basketball seasons in Idaho, but if a proposal is adopted by the Idaho Activities Association, the gap will be closed. The proposal would allow the high school basketball season to run from late October to early March, with a break in the season for the winter holidays.

The state board proposes filling that gap with the dual state wrestling tournament and state basketball tournament. Under the new idea, the basketball season would not turn out to be a problem for the schools.

Williams enjoyed his best night since December, hitting 10 field goals and half of them on twisting, driving shots. Stover, who has belted the Bruins rebounding since mid-January, added another couple of dunks and through 14 points, most of them in the first half when the Bruins were fighting for their lives against the determined Tigers.

As is typical of this cross-river rivalry, Twin Falls didn't have it easy until the final half. The score was tied six times and the lead changed hands 11 times before the Bruins pulled into a six-point margin in the first three minutes of the third quarter and held it.

Both teams scored well in the final half. Jerome led by 15 to 18 on jump shots while Twin Falls stayed in contention on Williams' driving shots and Stover's rebound points.

The Bruins jumped in front by four in the early going but Jerome came back to 60-50 saw the lead until early in the second period. Then Stan Millard and Pat Williams hit Jerome goals for a three-point lead and Jerome held away for the next three minutes, once going on top by four.

Stover hit four points in 18 seconds to put the Bruins on top by three with 3:20 left and Twin Falls held a one-point edge at intermission.

Jerome led at 35-33 early in the second half before George Smith hit a field goal with 6:31 remaining and Alan Brown and Williams backed it with buckets to swell the lead to 41-30.

Still the Bruins showed they hadn't completely shaken the scoring slump that has held them. With 1:26 left in the third period John Astorguila hit a long shot and it wasn't until 3:19 remained in the game that Astorguila broke the field goal drought with a driving shot. Jerome was almost as cold, getting only two field goals from Pat Williams. That cut the margin to three points before the Bruins took off for good.

Twin Falls won the preliminary 57-42.

Declo Buries Wolves With Torrid Attack

CASTLEFORD, Feb. 6—After a tepid 15-point first quarter, the Declo Hornets caught fire, scored 70 points over the remainder of the game and waxed the Castleford Wolves 85-58 last night.

The Hornets were tremendous from well outside in their shooting but a 42-point first half wasn't enough to shake the Hornets by only eight points.

But in the second half Declo got hotter while Castleford fell back to a normal 33 per cent clip. Castleford salvaged the first game 51-38.

Interesting note here is a quote from Giant manager Herman Franks who said "we have to play with a short roster because of two of three big bonus kids have to stay with the parent club." The key is the word big. Schroder got $35,000 and Henderson $45,000. We were informed last year. By the yardstick the Phillies posted in sending kids here, those bonuses are only middling.

Government Turns to Many Tools to Keep Fish Abreast of Angler Growth

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 — The government is turning to many tools to keep fish abreast of angler growth, according to a report by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The report says that the government is using a variety of tools, including artificial impoundments, to keep fish populations from declining.

Officials say the country now has more freshwater fishing than ever before with about 13 million acres provided by artificial impoundments of water.

This type of fishing water is expected to grow by 10 million acres in the next 35 years.

The bureau of sports fisheries and wildlife reported today that its submarine, battery-powered and accommodating two scientists, is being used in its south-central reservoir investigations.

In addition, scuba divers and automatic recording instruments are being used in the quest for the best means to build and maintain fish populations heavy enough to provide sport for anglers.

The tiny submarine is being used by a research team studying lakes on the White river which flows through the Ozark mountains on the Missouri-Arkansas border.

The submarine has a cruising range of 15 miles, its two conning towers have 360-degree viewing, and there is a glass plate in the bottom to permit close observation of fish in their habitat.

Another team of researchers works on main-stem reservoirs along the Missouri river in Nebraska, South Dakota and North Dakota.

Fishery biologists working at Lewis and Clark lake, on the border of Nebraska and South Dakota, use a device that automatically collects plankton and other data.

The department added that it is estimated that reservoir fishing days amount for 1965 fishermen by the year 2000 both population and reservoirs will continue to grow.

Gophers Thump Spartans 88-79

EAST LANSING, Mich., Feb. 6 — Minnesota picked up steam after a slow start and ran away from Michigan State, 88-79, today, handing the Spartans their sixth straight Big Ten basketball loss.

Lou Hudson was the hot shooter and all-around one-man gang for Minnesota. He was top scorer with 32 points.

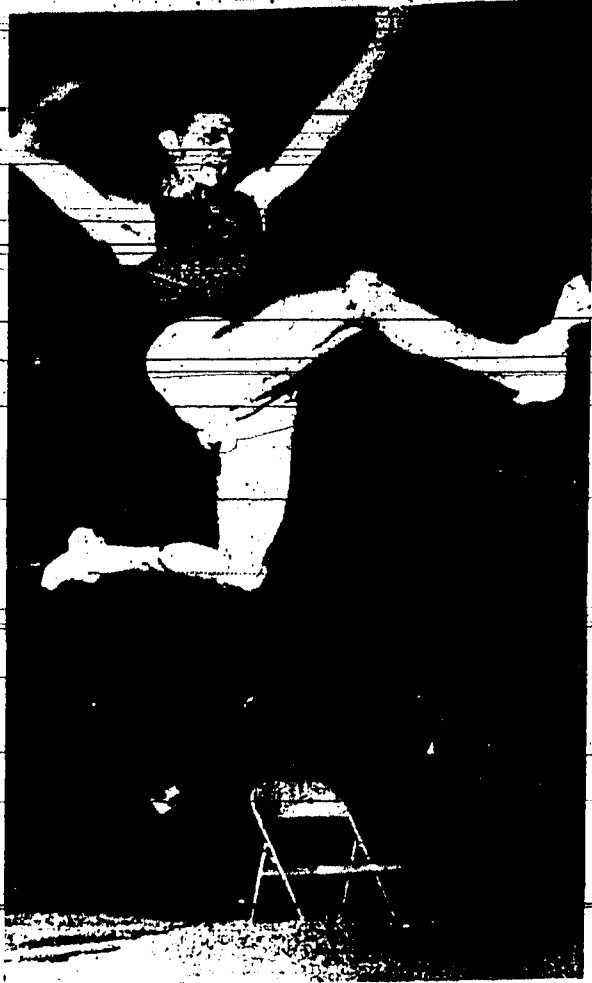

The Gophers now are 5-1 in the conference and in good position to challenge the Big Ten front-runner, top-ranked Michigan, which has a 5-0 mark.

Chicago Takes Over NHL Lead

TORONTO, Feb. 6 — The Chicago Blackhawks snapped a tie and sent the Toronto Maple Leafs to a 4-1 victory over Toronto and took possession of first place in the National Hockey league tonight.

The victory, coupled with Detroit's 3-1 triumph over Montreal, boosted the Hawks to points ahead of the Canadiens.

The teams were tied with 11 points each going into the game.

62-53 To Claim Gooding

Outlaw Tournery Crown

GOODING, Feb. 6 — Bigler's Desert Inn, Ogden, playing their fourth game of the day and third in a row, came out of the loser bracket tonight to defeat previously unbeaten Caldwell Athletic Club 62-53 and claim the championship of the 28th annual Gooding Lions Outlaw basketball tournament. The life-tourney favorites, Bigler's lost last night to Redmond, the same club the Ogden team had to beat in the first game tonight to gain the finals. Redmond was the only club to give Ogden trouble.

Wendell Surprises Vikings by 52-49

WENDELL, Feb. 6 — The Wendell Trojans rode the scoring of Greg Taylor and Nielsen, plus the rebounding of Jim King, into a surprise 52-49 Little Six conference victory over the Valley Vikings tonight. The Trojans did it with a four-point flurry early in the fourth quarter and clutch free throws shooting in the closing minutes. The loss dropped Valley two games off the pace set by Glenns Ferry and all but decided the Little Six conference championship.

Seldom more than three or four points separated the clubs over the first three quarters, with Wendell holding a two-point edge going into the final period. Valley pulled even at 41-41. Dan Peterson got Wendell on top with a field goal and Wendell went into a full-court press.

Taylor swiped the ball and passed it to Peterson, who hit the crippler and Wendell was in front to stay.

Valley made one more bid, cutting the count to 48-47 before Nielsen went to the foul line for two Wendell free throws. Valley cut the lead to 48-47, but King closed the Vikings out by hitting a rebound shot after Peterson had missed a free throw in the closing seconds. Wendell also won the first game 55-54.

BYU Takes 9th-Straight Home Contest

PHOVO, Feb. 6 — Brigham Young university won its ninth straight home-court victory tonight in a hard-fought 89-80 non-conference basketball game.

BYU's fast break was effectively stopped by the Aggie. But Utah State couldn't stop Jimas, who scored a total of 30 points, 24 in the second half.

Late Shots Insure Filer Of 64-61 Win

FILER, Feb. 6 — Gary Dougherty sank three charity shots and Lloyd Carey added a driving lay-up in the final minutes tonight to insure the Filer Wildcats of a 64-61 victory over the Buhl Indians.

Carey and Steve Sharp paced the Filer team throughout, bringing the Wildcats from a six-point deficit at the half to a 51-51 tie at the end of the third quarter. The Wildcats held a slim lead through the fourth quarter and Dougherty's and Carey's final shots made it stick.

Filer's only trouble came from Clark Griffin who scored 11 of 13 from the foul line as he paced the Indians in the tight game.

Sims Sparks Pilots Past Wolverines

HAILEY, Feb. 6 — The Glenns Perry Pilots had to stage a flurry late in the ball game before carrying a comfortable 56-41 victory over the Wood River Wolverines tonight.

Tied 10-10 after the first quarter, Glenns Perry went in front by five at halftime and nursed that 10-10 in the third quarter. Wood River, which has won only three games this year, then pulled to within six points with four minutes to go before Perry Sims started hitting. Sims hit 10 points in the final quarter to gain the victory.

Dilettante Cast Busy With 'South Pacific' Rehearsals

The Dilettante group of Magic Valley's production for 1965, "South Pacific," is well into rehearsal.

For the past several weeks, members of the chorus, orchestra, dancers and leading players have held separate rehearsals. Last week the group started to put the show together.

The actors feel they are fortunate once more in having H. Paul Kils, Buhl, as director. Kils directed the last two productions of the Dilettante group, "Oklahoma" and "Can-Can."

Kils also is the business manager and a performer with the group. He will be singing in the production.

The Dilettante production for this year again will have work of Phillip Keeler in its choreography. Since there is such a limited amount of dancing in "South Pacific," Keeler is setting some of the musical numbers for the show. He is an instructor in ballet at the University of Utah and has choreographed a number of shows in the intermountain area.

This year Keeler is able to work on the show only on weekends, since he teaches through Saturday. He catches a plane to Twin Falls Saturday night and leaves again for Salt Lake City early Monday morning, where he begins teaching classes at 7:30 a.m.

Freedom Talk Given to PTA At Heyburn

HEYBURN, Feb. 6 — George Forscher, commander of the Idaho Air Force association, told members of the Heyburn PTA Thursday evening that peace is not for sale.

"We have to earn it, not buy it," he declared, referring to the millions of American dollars which are sent to "tyrants" in other countries. He feels that there are many ways to achieve peace and these stem from good education, noting that a college education is just the beginning.

He pointed out that the 82 percent of the budget which is spent on defense, is a "small price for freedom." "The money is being used for research and development and is keeping us equal with Russia," he said.

In stressing that America must lead the free world, he noted that many Americans are lax in their many things and some are selfish. "We got freedom in America and afterwards we sat down and enjoyed it," he said.

He pointed out that a strong roof can't be built on a weak foundation.

"Some people have forgotten when we pay farmers not to farm and workers not to work, when we buy grain and live people to watch it rot, that you simply cannot build a strong nation out of 180 million weak, dependent individuals," he said. "We must remain the land of the free or the land of the free lunch. Shall we remain the home of the brave or of the subsidized?"

The program was under the direction of Mrs. Vernon Sutton, program chairman. Community singing was under the direction of Mrs. Q. D. Brown and land, Christensen. Musical selections were by the DHRs, a singing group from Minico composed of Dorothy Ducker, Jeanne Evans and Rudy Santos.

The highlight of the meeting was the annual presentation of a life PTA membership. Mrs. Harlow Cheney was presented the pin and honor by her brother, Stevens Heimer, school teacher and PTA parliamentarian. Mrs. Cheney was commended for the many years she has worked with the PTA. She was marked with the same people both on organizational and social levels. She is a past president of the local PTA and is currently president of the Minidoka PTA council.

Past presidents honored were Mrs. Cheney, Mrs. Louis Stamp, Mrs. Orla Olson, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Harold Vogt. Each was presented a corsage by Mrs. Lund, PTA council secretary.

Mrs. John Woodcock's first grade class won the room count for having the most parents present. They will receive a $10 prize.

Refreshments were served by the fourth grade room mothers.

HOSPITALIZED HEYBURN, Feb. 6—William L. Buhl Morrison is a patient at the St. Alphonsus hospital, Boise.

4-H Leaders Meet With Advisory Unit

RUPERT, Feb. 6 — Officers of the Minidoka County 4-H Leaders association met with the new 4-H advisory board Wednesday evening to acquaint the board with the program and make plans for the year. The board consists of area businessmen and other interested persons.

Members of the advisory board are Duane Hansen, Afton Southall; Mrs. Jane Kiehe, Arlo Montgomery, Fred Fricke, Hylak Beaver and Bob Hillard.

The need for more 4-H leaders in the county was emphasized and an analysis of the county was made to determine in which areas leaders are needed most.

County agents Vance Smith and Ann Marie Baum explained the program and reported that Minidoka county now ranks fourth in the state in 4-H enrollment while ranking only fourteenth in population to draw from.

The value of 4-H records was pointed out during the meeting. Reed Lewis, vice president of the association, spoke on the county and district fairs. Mrs. Arlo Montgomery gave a resume of club progress, 4-H camp, the county and district fairs and other activities.

John Chase, president of the group, explained the work of the leaders' association.

A display of projects furnished by members of the 4-H Builders club was reviewed.

The next regular meeting of the leaders' association, the advisory board and the Builders club will be a banquet March 16 planned to climax a series of meetings.

Forest Visits Show Increase

Recreation visits to the 18 national forests in the intermountain region during 1964 topped 15 million, a new record, according to National Forester Floyd Iverson, U.S. Forest Service.

The 1964 visits exceeded the 1963 total by nearly one million. The increase was due to the national forests' ranks highest among recreational areas. Hunting was second, followed by fishing, camping, hunting and winter sports in that order.

A breakdown of visits by states in the region showed Utah had 3,231,600; Idaho, 3,766,500; Nevada, 847,300; Wyoming, 1,033,500; Colorado, 2,050,000 and California, 2,050,000.

Intermountain region includes the states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming. Forests do not include some forest lands.

Cub Scout Activities Plus Country Living Result In Active Life on Ranch

By O. A. (Gus) KELKER
Times-News Feature Editor
JACKPOT, Nev., Feb. 6—This is a story of Cub Scouts and of modern day living — country style, that is.

The locale is just about 30 miles south and east of this Nevada community at a place known officially as the University of Nevada Knoll Creek experiment station.

At this station, where her husband is superintendent, lives Mrs. Clark (Pearl) Torell. An attractive red-haired mother who has some lively ideas about living, and people, how to get things done, and the role of women in raising children.

So far as Scouting is concerned, if there was a den mother "queen" in the Snake River Area council, she would be it.

Once every week—the time is after school each Wednesday—bedlam reigns supreme at the Torell home. The place is five miles off paved highway 89, reached over a muddy, slippery road that could be termed just about anything but an express highway.

The bedlam is supplied by four Cub Scouts who come to the weekly meeting. Mrs. Torell meets them where the school bus leaves them—five miles from her home—and hauls them in.

The four Cubs supply the incentive, but five other children join in the festivities. All are Torell children, as is one of the Cubs.

And this particular time, when this writer-photographer journeyed into the area because it was "Cub Scout week," the Torells were celebrating their second year of Cub Scout week. Last year there were six Cubs involved for the weekly overnight stay, and in 1966 there will be nine.

These were children of a friend who had gone to Salt Lake City for medical treatment. This swelled the number of children present to 11.

But this still isn't the heart of the story. What makes it unique in Scout circles is that the Cubs not only meet at the Torell place, but they also spend the night there. Mrs. Torell feeds them supper and breakfast before hauling them the boys met at the home of Mrs. Faye Peitsault, Jackpot. After the meeting, however, their parents took them home. They did not stay for the night.

But at the Torell home, things were different. It was so far from anywhere that Mrs. Torell figured it was just as easy to keep them overnight and feed them two meals as it was to wait up until the parents arrived.

Then, too, there was the question of the unimproved last five miles of the road to her home. Sometimes travel is uncertain.

So far as Cub Scouting is concerned, attendance is always 100 per cent and 100 per cent of the boys of Cub Scout age in the area belong to the pack.

Actually, it took a high official ruling to administer through the Snake River Area council in Twin Falls, instead of Reno, in which district it is officially located. The setup works out fine, however, and it is much more convenient.

Things are looking up for Cub activities. When the first overnights arrived last year they had to stay in an old house. Last May the Torells moved into a new one.

Two years ago they had electricity, but it was new, too. Now they have another convenience—it is a telephone.

Cub projects are carried out after dinner. For instance, this particular time the boys were making decorations for a blue and gold banquet slated this week. "This" was the main part of the decorative theme.

To calm the boys down before the dinner session, Mrs. Torell lets them romp around the ranch. After dinner enthusiasm again comes to the fore and, if you don't like noise, the meeting

Stories starting out on one theme sometimes have a tendency to end up on another. That was the case with this one concerning an unusual Cub Scout meeting arrangement.

It developed two ways. The Cub Scout angle was an interesting one, but so was the other theme. This turned out to be sort of a country living story about a woman who likes youngsters and is very happy that she is residing in a somewhat isolated area in which her nearest neighbor is seven miles away.

This is where Mrs. Clark (Pearl) Torell enters the scene of things. As much as being the story of a Cub Scout group, this also is the story of this attractive red-haired mother.

back to the school bus pickup point about 8 a.m. next day.

This is the second year the Torells have celebrated their second year of Cub Scout week. Last year there were six Cubs involved for the weekly overnight stay, and in 1966 there will be nine.

START OF BUSY time comes when Mrs. Clark (Pearl) Torell, right, meets school bus bringing Cub Scouts and her own children from school at Jackpot. Joe Lawrence, driver of the bus, talks briefly with the students before continuing on to discharge his last passenger, seen sitting in the bus. Children shown include Allen Torell, David Torell, Ronnie Torell, Gordon Keep, Randy Carlson and Steve Boies. The Torell home is south and east of Jackpot. (Times-News photo)

SOUND ASLEEP—in a common bed, after a busy evening of Cub activities, the four members of the Jackpot, Nev., Cub pack dream of more things which will keep them busy the next day. They are Ronnie Torell, Steve Boies, Gordon Keep and Randy Carlson. Once each week the Cub pack meets and remains overnight at the Torell home on Knoll creek, about 30 miles south and east of Jackpot. (Times-News photo)

SERIOUS BUSINESS of punching holes in empty milk cans, one step in converting them to vases, is practiced by two Cub Scouts. Gordon Keep, left, uses the hammer while Randy Carlson, who has completed his holes, looks on. (Times-News photo)

SHOSHONE CITY library is one of many institutions throughout Magic Valley and Idaho to benefit from the trading stamp project of the Idaho state police. State Patrolman William Van Dyke, Shoshone, presents covers and indexes for National Geographic magazines to Mrs. R. G. Neher, library board member. State police presented 50 stamp books to the library.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Covers and indexes for the National Geographic magazines at SHOSHONE City library have been obtained by using trading stamps given to the library by Idaho state highway patrolmen. State Patrolman William Van Dyke, Shoshone, presented the covers to Mrs. R. G. Neher, member of the library board. There were trading stamp books presented to the library by the patrolmen this year, coming from officers of the state who had received them when purchasing gasoline during the year. Geographic magazines to be covered by the new project range from the years 1941 to 1964.

Chapel rocks seems a strange name for the formations now known as the Silent City of Rocks, but according to an old 1852 diary of a wagon train emigrant on the California trail, that was the best way he could describe it.

J. Newell Dayley, OAKLEY, relates that he was finishing his breakfast one morning this past summer when two men appeared at his door and began talking to him about the California trail.

It seems that for the past three years Bruce L. McKinstry, Riverside, Ill., and Lyle Hildebrand, Casper, Wyo., have made it their hobby to spend the summer months retracing the old California trail which began at Independence, Mo. McKinstry's grandfather, the owner of the diary, was a member of the wagon train.

This year they began their trek at Casper, Wyo., and followed the trail to Elko, Nev. Going by the description of the old diary of the countryside, and with the help of modern roadmaps the two followed the trail and many nights camped alongside it.

A copy of their journey was sent to Dayley recently and it records the winding of the trail from Wyoming up through the Portneuf river, over to Fort Hall and American Falls where it makes a sharp turn and goes past MALTA.

It was here Dayley notes that the pair spent the whole afternoon driving back and forth across the Malta area trying to locate anything that looked like the trail.

Due to the land being under cultivation the task was extremely difficult but in the late afternoon they again located the trail which was nothing more than a shallow but plain scar in the gravelly sagebrush slope near the creek west of Malta and also near highway 77.

From here they followed a country road south through the small village of ELBA and ALMO but finding no motel accommodations in either place they decided they would try OAKLEY where they could stop to write their days findings and soon wound up in the Oakley Drugstore.

To their dismay they found there were no accommodations here either, so they asked the owner of the drugstore, where they could stay immediately they were offered the empty apartment above the store for the night.

The next morning they walked across the street to a garage where Thurlow Smith sent them to visit Dayley who has a vast amount of historic information about this area.

Dayley recalls he canceled an appointment for the day and spent the day with the two men touring the City of Rocks where they picked up the trail through the extinct town of Moulton.

Here the trail swings southwest and goes in an almost straight line over grain fields and into the Granite pass. This part of the trip ended as the area had recently been fenced and they were unable to enter.

Retracing their route they came back to Oakley. They returned to the trail again via the Goose Creek road directly south of Oakley where they visited the Devildog.

A little farther on they looked into a cave on the Goose Creek road and found many well-preserved names dating as far back as 1850 and also saw a carved face.

As Dayley returned to Oakley at this point the other two men went on to Jackson, Nev., for the night but they were able to secure an airplane for an aerial view of the route they had walked and driven the few days before.

The men wrote Dayley they plainly see many parts of the trail which they had missed before.

Their trip ended when they got to Elko but next summer they hope to finish their trip from Elko to California as the grandfather did more than 114 years before.

Dayley was particularly interested in this trip as he is an old hand at tracing the various trails in this area.

He directs many tourists over this part of the county each summer. This last summer as he was eating lunch in the City of Rocks with several men they discovered several moccasins buried in a huge rock about 100 feet from the top with a date of 1853 on it.

He feels that the only way anyone could have possibly painted a name on it would be to hang from a suspended rope from the top and do the writing and then be hauled to the top again.

Could this be a member of the

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

"Casualties of a Casual Concern"

LAVOID ROBERTSON, Pastor First Southern Baptist Church

"So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spew thee out of my mouth." Rev. 3:16.

We have a word that best describes this attitude today, — CASUAL. We wear casual clothes, have casual acquaintances, we have a casual interest in this or that like the Hollywood actress who said she was "interested in everything."

Rev. Robertson a little bit. Many people today are not committed to anything, they dabble and have a smattering of information and a minimum of interest in a multitude of things.

Nowhere is this more evident than in present day "religion." What a host of casual Christians, Sunday morning saints, to say nothing of the Christmas and Easter variety, who have a superficial interest in "church."

Along with lodge, bridge, bowling and golf they manage to include some religion. With them it is a sideline like rock collecting and bird watching. "Oh, dear, one wouldn't think of getting excited over church attendance."

CHRIST had no place in His program for casual disciples. Some believed when they saw His miracles but He took no stock in them. Some would follow Him when they had attended the dead. It was faithless, self-interest, all or nothing at all. It still is!

What is the thing that most heavily burdens a pastor's heart? The members who are casual and active do not burden him. Even the cold outsider does not trouble him except as he is concerned for their salvation. But the lukewarm members, the off-and-on members are a constant source of grief to Him. His heart aches for them as he longs for them to shake off their lethargy and get going for God. Casual religion causes the world to laugh at Christianity instead of being drawn to Christ and His church.

How different is this concept of discipleship than that of the apostle Paul as he declared, "this one thing I do, — I press toward the mark of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Phil. 3:13-14: So often men are diverted from God's plan by the lesser calls and attractions of life. There are so many interests, demands, and pressures in the world that we are in constant danger of being confused, entangled, and defeated by their holds upon us. The good would keep us from the best. The gain and superficial would often lead us into paths of futility and failure.

The means of life can so easily become an end, so often bogged down by the things of the world that we lose sight of the primary reason for our existence. How important it is to keep before us the "mark of the high calling" set by Jesus Christ!

Both vehicles were traveling west on the highway. Murphy had started to make a left-hand turn, but the truck's signal lights apparently weren't operating and Miss Hanchett attempted to pass. Her car struck the left side of the pickup truck.

Neither driver was injured and there were no citations issued.

Legislative Work Behind '63 Session

BOISE, Feb. 6 (AP)—The 38th Idaho legislature has done only a third of the work the 1963 session turned out on this date, secretary of state Arnold Williams said today.

Williams said he has received only 11 "chapters" or new bills compared to 36 two years ago.

The secretary, who has been in Idaho politics nearly 30 years, said he disagreed with a movement on the third floor to make the superintendent of public instruction an appointive office. He said he agreed that the mine inspector should be appointive instead of elective.

"The superintendent of public instruction is responsible to the people and not to a board or to the governor," the Democrat said. "If the governor appointed him then the office would be political and this isn't what the people want over their education department."

EIGHT TO BEHOLD is wash hanging on an outdoor line in the winter. Figuratively speaking, it proves at least two things. One: women still like to hang clothes outside to dry when the opportunity presents itself—skipping the automatic driers in— and the winter weather is not too disagreeable in the Snake river area of this section of the state. The line of wash was pictured at a home northwest of Buhl last week. Although there was snow on the ground the weather was so moderate that the clothes and towels were drying at a rapid clip. (Times-News photo)

Merger Plan Given Okay By Chamber at Rupert

RUPERT, Feb. 6 — Members of the Rupert Chamber of Commerce passed a resolution favoring consolidation of the Rupert and Burley employment security agency offices during a luncheon meeting Thursday at the Hirling cafe.

The resolution stipulates that the proposed building be located between Rupert and Burley on highway 24.

C. R. Jones, manager of the local agency, pointed out the Burley offices are located in inadequate quarters and money is available to build a new office. He emphasized the state employment agencies operate on funds from the federal government, and pressure has been put on the state to close the Rupert office for several years.

Jones said the Burley and Rupert offices are located only nine miles apart and states which have experienced a rapid growth are desirous of an employment agency located in their areas.

Employers throughout the nation contribute towards the federal fund and many states feel they are entitled to more offices in thickly populated areas.

Grant Catmull, chairman of the congressional action committee, reported briefly on legislative action concerning the proposed sales tax. He reported that in a telephone conversation with Dale Garner, state representative now in Boise, Garner reported if the sales tax had been passed two years ago a $40,000,000 relief for the state would have been realized. If the present legislature passes the sales tax proposal only $20,000 relief will be realized.

Catmull reported also on the legislative bills being taken daily at the sessions.

Harold Carroway, city councilman and chamber member, reported briefly on some of the action being considered by the city council.

He said that on recommendation from the Idaho Municipal League, the city's budget is being laid up briefly as legislative action may change the situation. More meetings may be available through the liquor and highway

Senate Amends Stop Sign Bill

BOISE, Feb. 6 — The senate amended yesterday a bill which would have required installation of stop signs on all unprotected highways and railroad crossings.

The original bill made such installations mandatory. The amendment requires such action unless the governing agency involved determines that installation of a stop sign would be more of a hazard than the lack of such a sign.

Hagerman Home Economics Girls Get Insight on Behavior of Youngsters

Editor's note: The following story was selected as best of the subject matter among students of the Journalism department at the Hagerman high school. It contains the unique play school which has just concluded. Thirty-nine per cent of the girls of the school participated as "part-time mothers."

BY DIANE GREATEREX
HAGERMAN, Feb. 6—Thirty-one per cent of the girls of Hagerman high school are "part-time" mothers. For three days a week, two hours a day, they are experiencing feelings and thoughts comparable to those of real mothers.

This is the first time the junior and senior home economics girls have ever attempted anything such as this. They have set up a play school in the home economics department under the direction of their instructor, Mrs. Leon Grieve, Gooding. The purpose of the school is to give 4- and 5-year-old children the experience of being away from their mothers.

The 16 home economics girls care for 18 charges while mothers shop, visit, and relax. The fact that each person is an individual is strongly illustrated by these children. The girls expect to learn some of the trials and tribulations of child care. This project should also produce competent and efficient baby-sitters.

Several weeks ahead of time the girls began to prepare for their little charges. Much reading and research was done on children from 4 to 6 years old. The purpose of the school, as explained to the girls, is that the child is not there to learn reading and writing but self-reliance. They have learned that everything a child does has some purpose and reason behind it. Also, the girls are not allowed to reprimand the children in any way.

The children are entertained

Twin Falls County Rates As One of Nation's Best; Agent Sold on Area

Keeping track of one of the outstanding agricultural counties in the United States is only part of the job of Twin Falls County Agent Donald F. Youtz. During the course of the year, Youtz also will encourage in one way or another practically every farmer in the county.

Twin Falls county ranks 57th nationally in agriculture out of the 3,000 or more counties in the United States.

It might be surprising, but Twin Falls county is the largest beef producing county in Idaho and in a good year will be the top beef producing county in Idaho. In potatoes, the county will rank in the top 100 in the United States. It rates high in production of sugar and sheep products and is ranked third in the state in dairy products.

The county's bean reputation is international in scope.

Thus the county agent must specialize in a number of agricultural talents because he is called on to assist in many programs, some of which may originate locally, or on the state and national level.

Youtz came to Twin Falls via Iowa, California and Wyoming. Technically, Wyoming is home to losses under these circumstances, whether feeding is done or not. Adjustments in future seasons to compensate for these losses can be made if necessary just as liberalization can be arranged when increases occur.

It would be quite simple if this whole question of artificial feeding of game in the winter could be summed up in this manner, explained to the public and then put away as if it were done.

But it isn't that easy. No matter how convincing are the results of studies that recommend against feeding, just no matter how well people are informed, the same question is bound to confront the game manager when the next rough winter rolls around. Why don't you feed the starving game?

And, the fact is, when winter feed is completely covered with snow, if herding is out of the question or trapping is impossible, or if there are no good places to which the game can be moved, and the animals are faced with starvation, something has to be done!

Actually, department workers accept these hard facts with great reluctance. It is a serious matter. The biologists, conservation officers and officials of the department depend directly on the proper management of wildlife for their livelihood, and facing up to the prospect of an extra heavy winter loss of game is not easy.

There's still going to be some before they are able to build up a high enough population of the bacteria and protozoa to digest the alfalfa or other artificial feed.

Often the suggestion is made that feeding should begin early so that the animals adjust before conditions become critical. There the problem of animal distribution comes up again.

When the weather is mild, the big game animals are scattered. They cannot be enticed from the natural feeds by artificial feeds such as alfalfa.

Even if the few deer and elk that are adjacent to the roads were prepared, there would still be weakened animals coming onto the feed grounds when conditions become critical.

Past records contain considerable information that accumulated during the years when winter feeding was a general practice. Even with the great expense involved and the difficulty of getting feed to large numbers of big game animals, the records show the many dead animals that were taken from the feed grounds. At the present time there is no known way to change this picture.

A big game herd that has access to an adequate supply of natural feed is highly productive. A well fed, highly productive herd can produce more game for the hunter than can a larger herd of less productive animals. This is the theme of game management.

Winter feeding is obviously not the sound approach to successful game management. A program of annual harvests which keep big game populations within the limits of their natural food supply during "average" or "normal" winters will allow some "cushion" to absorb greater labor during especially severe winters which occur periodically.

There's still going to be some

DONALD F. YOUTZ

Youtz. He was born Sept. 5, 1915, at Valley Junction, Ia. After a short time there the family moved to California and eventually settled at Burns, Wyo., east of Cheyenne. In 1938 Youtz was raised on a cattle and wheat ranch and in 1933 he graduated from Burns high school.

Youtz recalls that opportunities were pretty limited for a young man back in the early 1930's. Things were pretty tough for dryland wheat farmers. The family didn't suffer any real hardships, but money was scarce.

In the fall of 1933 he entered the University of Wyoming with $50 in his pocket and a $100 Union Pacific railroad scholarship. By working, borrowing and with help from home he graduated in 1937 with a degree in agriculture. Jobs were still scarce and Youtz worked for the soil conservation service for six months at $90 a month including and staking stock watering ponds.

In 1938 he taught vocational agriculture at Linglie, Wyo., which was an irrigated area like Twin Falls.

In July of 1941 he entered military service. A private's pay, $21 per month, didn't look too inviting so he tried officers' candidate school and was commissioned. Another reason for entering OCS was it would be easier to support a wife.

Youtz was married on Feb. 1, 1943, at Hastings, Neb. In early 1946 he was discharged.

However, he stayed active in the reserves and today holds the rank of lieutenant colonel.

The Youtz family then moved to Billings, Mont., where he worked with the bureau of reclamation on planning irrigation projects. In 1947 he was transferred to the Heart Mountain project near Cody, Wyo., where he worked as an agriculturalist on a planning and homesteading project.

When that project was completed, Youtz had to make a decision of where to go next. One offer was in Jordan, and there were several others. The opening that appealed to him was the job of 4-H club agent in Twin Falls county under Warren Daugh.

"Twin Falls looked good to us. It was interesting to watch sugarbrush land converted over to irrigation in Wyoming, but the size of the tracts of land in Twin Falls dwarfed the Wyoming ones," said Youtz.

Another appealing feature was that it concerned 4-H work and Youtz had been active in 4-H as a youngster.

When Warren Daugh retired in 1961 Youtz was named Twin Falls county agent.

The county extension staff consists of three people. Youtz, assistant agent Dan Gault and extension home agent Agnes Huns.

Youtz feels that the farmer needs all the help he can obtain. The cost-price squeeze makes it imperative that the farmer makes as few mistakes as possible or he simply won't stay in business.

The rapidly changing picture in agriculture presents a tremendous challenge to all extension agents, claims Youtz.

"I'm sure that in the next few years, new methods, chemicals, and machines will be developed, that we can't ever imagine today," he said.

A county agent's timetable requires him to have odd hours. There are night meetings, early morning sessions and special work throughout the week.

Practically anything going on in agriculture involves the county agent one way or another. His entire working day is devoted to community service.

Youtz is active in many organizations. He is a member of the Masonic lodge, American Legion, Grange and attends the Presbyterian church.

In addition to graduating from the University of Wyoming, he has attended Colorado State university and taken graduate work at Wyoming. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta and Alpha Zeta, an honorary agriculture fraternity.

His wife is well known in Magic Valley Music circles and contributes much to the success of the community.

The Youtz family resides at 705 Walnut street north and keeping up with three active youngsters is almost a full time job. They are Dennis, 17; Jeffrey, 14, and Melody, 9.

The Youtz family looks forward each summer to time in the mountains where they can just relax, get away from it all and soak up the serenity of the mountains, plus the friendly people are the reasons why the family decided to move to Twin Falls.

"It's one of the best decisions we've ever made," claims Youtz.

WINTERING DEER, like others throughout Idaho, do well on nature's fare as long as the number of animals is in balance with the amount of feed available. The Idaho fish and game department gives three reasons why it is unwise to feed big game animals artificially. First, only a relatively small number of animals can be fed during any feeding operation. Second, the concentrated animals cause long-term damage to the range. Third, the digestive systems of big game animals seldom are ready to handle the artificial feeds when feeding operations begin. (Fish Game photo)

Management of Game During Winter Involves Evaluation of Many Items

BOISE, Feb. 6 — Managing wildlife in the temperate weather zone of the northern hemisphere is concerned more with the nature of the winter season than any other factor of the environment.

In fact, the game manager directs most of his efforts towards the evaluation of the effects of winter on the carrying capacity of particular areas of wildlife habitat.

One conclusion which may be drawn from a study of winter and game relationships is that game should be harvested to a point where winter loss would be at a minimum. In effect, this means managing game on the basis of these hard winters which come along every 10 or 15 years.

Theoretically this may be all right, but it doesn't work that way. Five or six years of nice open winters generally result in a gradual increase in the wintering population. This means more game in the fall for hunting, more hunting opportunity and everyone is happy.

Then along comes the hard winter again; there's not enough food and cover to go around and a more than average winter loss is imminent.

The problem is how can game be brought through those rough winters that unfortunately come along every so often. Why not put out artificial feed?

This important question of game management has been pondered and studied for many years. Feeding studies have been conducted, food and nutrient requirements have been investigated and most states have actually carried on extensive feeding programs at one time or another.

Every possible angle of the problem has been studied ever since the late 1930's when big game animals started to exceed the capacity of winter ranges all over the country.

Game department administrators have earnestly tried to engineer winter feeding programs that really work. No one likes to see wildlife starve — especially those who depend on it for their livelihood.

The results are invariably a failure, and, paradoxically, in an inverse ratio — the more extensive the winter program, the greater the damage to the future of the wildlife populations.

Basically, there are three reasons why game managers feel that it is unwise to feed big game animals artificially. First, only a relatively small number of animals can be fed during any feeding operation. Second, the concentrated animals cause long-term damage to the range. Third, the digestive systems of big game animals are seldom ready to handle the artificial feeds when feeding operations begin.

The game winter ranges, though normally comprising only a small percentage of the total big game range, are usually quite extensive. The average person is often familiar with only that portion of the winter range adjacent to a road.

To most people anything more than a few deer is a lot of deer. And the roadside observer may actually believe that he is seeing most of the deer population.

He fails to realize that an entire herd is not going to be concentrated along a given road. To try to do so would be a waste of money and a waste of time.

There is neither the money nor the manpower available to accomplish this.

Winter feeding concentrates big game animals in a relatively small area. This destroys range on the feeding ground and over-grazes the surrounding range. The animals continue to take natural feeds in addition to the artificial feed.

The natural feeds were not already in short supply. It is probable that no one would have requested feeding in the first place. The net result is to destroy the ability of the range to produce sufficient natural feed during succeeding years.

The third, and probably most important point against winter feeding, is the fact that the animals usually have difficulty in digesting artificial feeds.

Deer and elk, like cattle and sheep, are ruminants. Ruminants are unique in that their digestion is carried out by micro-organisms called bacteria and one-celled animals called protozoa.

Different kinds of these tiny plants and animals are required to break down the different food plant species. When the feeding operation begins, most of the big game animals simply do not have enough of the right kinds of these organisms to digest the artificial feed.

Many of the animals are already in a weakened condition before feeding begins. They die before they are able to build up a high enough population of the bacteria and protozoa to digest the alfalfa or other artificial feed.

Often the suggestion is made that feeding should begin early so that the animals adjust before conditions become critical. There the problem of animal distribution comes up again.

When the weather is mild, the big game animals are scattered. They cannot be enticed from the natural feeds by artificial feeds such as alfalfa.

Even if the few deer and elk that are adjacent to the roads were prepared, there would still be weakened animals coming onto the feed grounds when conditions become critical.

Past records contain considerable information that accumulated during the years when winter feeding was a general practice. Even with the great expense involved and the difficulty of getting feed to large numbers of big game animals, the records show the many dead animals that were taken from the feed grounds. At the present time there is no known way to change this picture.

A big game herd that has access to an adequate supply of natural feed is highly productive. A well fed, highly productive herd can produce more game for the hunter than can a larger herd of less productive animals. This is the theme of game management.

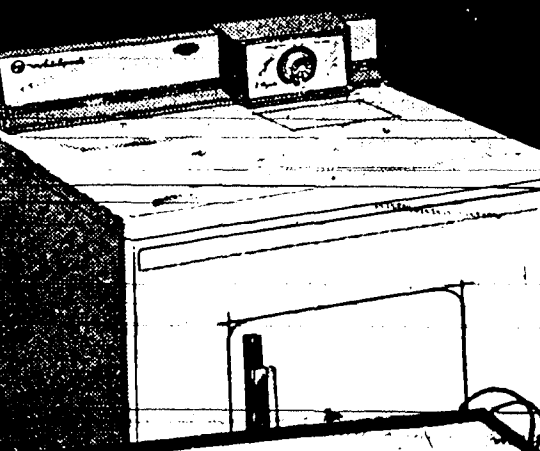

Winter feeding is obviously not the sound approach to successful game management. A program of annual harvests which keep big game populations within the limits of their natural food supply during "average" or "normal" winters will allow some "cushion" to absorb greater labor during especially severe winters which occur periodically.

There's still going to be some before they are able to build up a high enough population of the bacteria and protozoa to digest the alfalfa or other artificial feed.

Often the suggestion is made that feeding should begin early so that the animals adjust before conditions become critical. There the problem of animal distribution comes up again.

MORE THAN 5,000 patients entered the LDS Primary Children's hospital in Salt Lake City last year and Jana Leasure, Kimberly, was one of them. ## Drive Under Way in Twin Falls Stake To Collect Funds for Utah Hospital

Each year the wards and stakes of the LDS church conduct a drive to obtain funds to continue the operation of the Primary Children's hospital in Salt Lake City. Over the years the drive has become nicknamed the "Penny drive."

It then becomes standard procedure at Primary for all the youngsters who have had birthdays to donate two cents for each year they are old to help support the facility.

Last year Twin Falls stake was the largest donor to the hospital, which indicates the type of support it gives the project.

Panel Held About Weeds In Minidoka

RUPERT, Feb. 6—More than 75 persons attended a panel discussion on the county's weed control program Tuesday in the civic building.

The all-day meeting, sponsored by the county agents and University of Idaho agriculture extension service, was attended by 15 representatives of irrigation districts and highway boards.

Dennis Morrison, weed supervisor, moderated the panel which consisted of Burt Van Every, county commission chairman, Terrance Guiley, A and B Irrigation representative, Nels Moller, Minidoka Irrigation, and William Bennett, Minidoka highway district.

The county will confine activities on the weed control problem to destroying noxious weeds. The A and B Irrigation will continue its control project and will spend approximately $65,000. The Minidoka Irrigation district will purchase new tractor-mounted equipment and maintain two rigs for weed control.

The highway department plans to purchase equipment and hire a fulltime employee to work under the supervision of the county's weed supervisor.

During the morning session a film on atomization was shown. Robert Higgins, University of Idaho extension agronomist, discussed "Atrazine, Banvel D and Tordon." Dean Boyle, U. S. bureau of reclamation, explained the fundamentals of weed control.

Hansen Aide Resigns for County Post

HANSEN, Feb. 6—Thomas Lee Hansen resigned as watermaster of the county, and Harold Warren will replace him for a month or six weeks, until a new man can be hired.

Hansen resigned to accept a position with the county sheriff, James H. Benham. He plans to move to Twin Falls this week and take over his county police duties. Hansen replaced R. V. Walker last August, who also resigned to accept a position with the Rupert city police, after being the local water master-marshal for 13 years.

Norville Reynolds, clerk of the board of Hansen trustees, announced that five new street lights will be installed in the village by the Idaho Power company.

Four will be located on Third street west line at Railroad avenue, Maple, Overland and Walnut, and one at Elm and First street east.

Budget for Lincoln to Be Decided

SHOSHONE, Feb. 6—A proposed budget of $154,610 will be voted upon at the budget hearing of Lincoln county commissioners Monday.

The proposed budget is $4,141 above the $150,469 of last year, above the full budget approved a year ago, approximately only $136,061 was spent.

Highest single items on the budget is in the current expense fund, set at $91,872. Last year it was set at $98,269 with $84,762.23 spent. This fund takes in all county operations, including salaries of the employees, courthouse and grounds.

The public health budget is proposed at $5,899 for 1965, about the same as a year ago. This is for wages of the public health nurse.

Both pest control and memorial funds remain $600 each for 1965's proposed budget, while the indigent fund is set at $15,000. It was set at $13,000 a year ago; of that amount $10,852.97 was spent.

The weed control fund is again set high, at $40,000 and same as last year, though only $38,938.92 was spent. This is a rotating fund and farmers repaying cost for weed control goes to the fund.

Last year's budget included election costs, officers' bonds and a new car for the sheriff's department.

In the current expense fund, salaries remain much the same as a year ago. For the officers and their help, the departments show $8,080, sheriff's office; $7,340 clerk, auditor, recorder; $7,100 for the assessor and his assistant; $7,040 for the treasurer and deputy; $5,140, probate court and assessor; $5,845, prosecutor and secretary; $2,500 for janitors; $60 for coroner; $4,000 for the county agent and secretary (the major part of his salary coming from the state); $2,170 in commissioners' special fund for necessary items.

Other expenses for each office include $3,738 for a total of $11,418 in the sheriff's budget; $1,300 other expenses to make a total of $8,640 in the clerk's office; $2,246 to make a total of $9,346 in the assessor's office; $1,977 to make a total of $9,017 total budget proposed for the treasurer's office; $1,457 to make a total of $1,457 in the probate court; $1,880 to make a total of $6,813 in the prosecutor's office; with market court expense set at $3,740.

Justice court salaries, $3,000, and other expenses for a total of $11,818, $600 other expense in the county commissioners' fund to make a total of $2,850; other expenses in the courthouse and grounds fund at $3,700 for a total of $6,700 and $318 other expenses in the coroner's fund to make a total of $378.

place is a poor place to be along about that time.

By 10 p.m. or so things start to quiet down and thoughts turn to slumber. But when morning comes around again, Mrs. Torrell and the children are up at 6 a.m. to get ready for breakfast "on time," because she has to have them back at the distant pickup point by a few minutes before 8

"Where is her husband all this time? As superintendent, his duties are varied. On the meeting day this writer was there Torrell was, for instance, busily engaged in setting out some new type traps to pick up a few wild horses which still roam the desolate section where the Knoll Creek station is located.

At night, after supper, he can relax while the dinner dishes are washed and the Cub meeting gets under way.

Relax? Both the husband and wife seem to be able to do just that at almost anytime they want. A case in point was the period the decorative baskets were being put together and parcelled and this writer were in the front room talking. Mrs. Torrell was with the youngsters around the kitchen work table.

Of the six Torrell children, only one, the youngest, is a girl. Carol is 4. Something disturbed her as she was watching the Cub Scouts work. She let out a scream that raised this writer a foot off his chair. Torrell did not bat an eye.

And Mrs. Torrell? When queried as to who screamed and why, she stuck her head into the living room and answered:

"What scream?" Just being sure your youngsters get an education when you live out in the wilderness is a task with which most city mothers are never confronted. It goes something like this:

Taking the children down to the point of school bus pickup each morning, driving back to the house, driving down to the pickup point once more in late afternoon and driving back to the house again means a total of 20 miles driven each school day.

This 20 miles a day, over that unimproved road, means that the mother drives approximately 4,000 miles during a school year. Just on this one project alone.

From there the children go by bus to school at Contact, 25 miles away. When they come back to the pickup point that night they have traveled 50 miles. When the end of the school year comes they will have logged about 10,000 miles of travel.

This total, of course, does not include that traveled by the oldest boy, who attends high school at Wells and who drives there and back every school day.

All added up this means that he drives 100 miles a day to get his education, or a total of about 20,000 miles a school year, more or less.

With Mrs. Torrell traveling 4,000 miles a year to get the children to the pickup point and back home, with the youngsters traveling about 10,000 miles a year for the education, and the oldest boy going to and from Wells for high school, it all adds up to a total of around 34,000 miles.

It would be greater if the youngsters were given credit for the ride from home to pickup point and return, but 34,000 miles of driving and riding a year to get an education seems to be enough of a total to gain attention.

Would she move into town? Not without a fight.

"I'm happy right where I am and would put up a fight if I had to move into town, any town," she said emphatically.

She and her husband have resided on Knoll Creek for 11 years and have been married 18. Their eldest son is Robert, 17. Other children include Allen, 12; David, 11; Ronnie, 9; Timmy, 7, and Carol, 4. Carol is not yet in school and the four younger boys go to grade school at Jackpot.

Allen and David are too old to be Cub Scouts so they serve as den chiefs, advising their mother in the "overnight" project. In addition, they belong to the Boy Scout troop in Jackpot and this makes another weekly trip taken by Mrs. Torrell from the ranch home.

Irrigation Unit Sets 1965 Fees

KING HILL, Feb. 6—Fees for the 1965 irrigation season were set by the board of directors of the King Hill Irrigation district at a meeting Wednesday at the firm's office, reports Donald Flock, board chairman.

Fees will be $8.50 per acre with lots in King Hill, Glenhills Ferry and Hammett to be assessed at $7.20 for the first 25-foot lot and $4.10 for each additional 25-foot lot. The toll is due April 1 with penalty and interest charged after April 20.

clison was reached. The writer would drive back to Twin Falls. After all, he would be home by around 7 a.m. and it would eliminate Mrs. Torrell having to get breakfast for another person.

It wasn't the Torrells' idea that the visitor depart. They thought he should remain for the night because, after all, it was late and it was a long drive home.

But fact of the matter was that the Times-News visitor just didn't have the heart to add to the confusion Mrs. Torrell was apparently not minding one bit.

She said emphatically. She and her husband have resided on Knoll Creek for 11 years and have been married 18. Their eldest son is Robert, 17. Other children include Allen, 12; David, 11; Ronnie, 9; Timmy, 7, and Carol, 4. Carol is not yet in school and the four younger boys go to grade school at Jackpot.

Allen and David are too old to be Cub Scouts so they serve as den chiefs, advising their mother in the "overnight" project. In addition, they belong to the Boy Scout troop in Jackpot and this makes another weekly trip taken by Mrs. Torrell from the ranch home.

Ronnie, Timmy and Carol all were born in Twin Falls, at Margaret Valley Memorial hospital. In the 11 years of such isolated living there has never been a real emergency so far as safety or health of the children is concerned.

Only three days in all those years have been missed in school attendance. Even then it was not illness or road condition. It was just so cold that motor vehicles couldn't be started. The mercury slid to -38 at the station.

In addition to Ronnie, the other Cub pack members are Gordon Keep, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Keep, Contact; Randy Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Carlson, Jackpot; and Steve Boles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eyer P. Boles, Wilkins.

In her spare time, Mrs. Torrell is content with just being a housewife. She makes her own bread and, in season, will can around 1,000 jars of jams, fruits, pickles, green beans and like items.

She keeps in touch, as does her husband, with state, national and world affairs through the newspaper and radio, but goes for days on end without seeing her next door neighbor.

Counting this writer, there were 14 people going to bed down at the Torrell home that eventful night. Plans called for this Times-News representative to join the group. About midnight, when things quieted down, a de-
